Four Mississippi county teenagers were injured in a single-car accident at 11:25 p.m. Saturday one mile north of East Prairie on Highway 105.

The patrol said the accident occurred when a car being driven at a high rate of speed by Randell Carl Cawey, 18, of Charleston ran off the highway and traveled a long distance in grass, then came back onto the road and overturned before skidding to a stop.

Casey and one passenger, Kenton Hutcheson, 17, of East Prairie suffered serious injuries. Two other passengers Michael Hutcheson, 17, of East Prairie and Charls McMurray, 18, of Charleston received moderate injuries.

All four were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Thomas A. Deboard, 43, of Des Arc received possible rib injuries in a one-car accident at 4 p.m. Sunday four miles north of Annapolis on Highway 49.

Deboard told the patrol that his power steering failed and his car ran off an embankment, overturned and burned.

The patrol said he refused medical treatment.

A bicyclist was struck by a pickup truck at 5:05 p.m. Sunday on Highway 61 one mile north of Fruitland.

Ron Tinnin, 12, of Jackson Route One was taken to St. Francis Hospital at Cape Giarardeau for treatment of minor injuries after he was struck by a pickup truck driven by Rebecca Ann Puchbauer, 16.

JAPAN VS. CANCER

Cancer insurance, which has been available in the United States for decades but has never amounted to a significant share of the insurance market, is going great guns in Japan.

Introduced in that country last fall by an American firm, cancer insurance proved so popular that the company sold 200,000 policies in eight months — seven times as many as it had hoped to sell in a year. Ranking only 400th in size among the 1,800 insurance companies in the United States, the Columbia, Ga.-based American Family Life Assurance Co. has shouldered its way past a number of its bigger American competitors eyeing the Japanese market, reports Japan Economic Journal.

The brisk sales of thecancer policies are attributed to the deeply rooted fear of cancer among Japanese. Since 1953, the disease has been the No. 2 cause of death in Japan, next only to strokes, and for people aged 35 to 64 it is the top killer.

The disease has become less deadly because of progress in treating it. Today, as many as half of all cancer patients can be cured. But high hospital costs remain here to stay. A cancer patient receiving treatment in a hospital may have to pay as much as $1,300 a month in medical bills. Thus the popularity of the new insurance.

Another reason is that cancer insurance premiums are cheaper than the premiums for blanket disease policies sold by Japanese domestic companies, which cost more to operate than insurance targeted at a single disease. Up to now, the Japanese insurance industry has steered clear of selling policies aimed at a specific disease in the belief that people would rather have policies giving them wide-ranged coverage.

GRATUITOUS VS. NATURAL VIOLENCE

A psychologist makes a useful distinction between the types of violence that seems to be so necessary to induce people to go to the movies nowadays.

On the one hand is the gratuitous, antisocial violence in films like "Rollerball" and "Magnum Force" in which people are encouraged to get their kicks watching other people being maimed, beaten, tortured and otherwise hurt.

But the violence in such films as "Earthquake," "The Towering Inferno" and "Jaws," although quite explicit, is natural violence, says Dr. Victor B. Kline of the University of Utah.

The total impact of this kind of violence is positive, he says, because it shows ordinary people coming together to overcome some terrible obstacle or danger. It also satisfied "a natural yearning in everyone to experience great emotional adventure without taking any risks."

WORTH A LISTEN

For our own good, it is time to take a look at the size of oil company profits compared to other industries and evaluate the purposes for which they are used. As the chief economist for one of the nation's major oil companies has said in speaking of his own company, "...few people are going to feelsorry for anyone--or any company--that has made a profit of say, $375 million in 1972...and reports 1973 profit running perhaps 30 percent ahead of that rate." Sympathy is not what is needed; understanding is. As this spokesman points out, a lack of understanding, unless it can be remedied, will be "...a major roadblock in the way of progress toward supplying this nation with the petroleum energy it needs."

The First National City Bank of New York has reported that the U.S. oil industry has earned, over the past 10 years, an average of 11.8 percent of its net worth in profits. This compares with computer manufacturers at 17.2 percent, automobiles at 15.6 percent and all manufacturing at 12.1 percent. The year 1972, from the profit standpoint, was the worst in 10 years for the oil industry. Most companies reporting increased profits for 1973 were making a comparison with this previous bad year, and it is a good thing they were able to show an increase. Unless there is enough profit to attract investment capital, "...nothing can be done about relieving the energy shortage–or providing more jobs, eliminating poverty, building adequate housing...." or practically anything else for that matter. It is the same old story–if you are making money, you can borrow money.

This industry spokesman points out that while his company was earning $375 million profit in 1972 it spent $658 million for exploration and development. In 1973, the figure was $722 million, and total capital expenditures rose to $1 billion. As he concludes, anyone raising questions should listen to reasonable answers. Quite plainly, those answers exist, and it is to be hoped that a lot of people are listening.

CAR TRIPS EASIER FOR HANDICAPPED THANKS TO SPECIAL HIGHWAY SIGNS

Handicapped people traveling by car in the U.S. have something to look forward to on the road—a new sign.

The U.S. Department of Transportation's Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) has approved a special symbol sign to indicate rest and scenic areas on Federal-aid highways having restroom facilities for the handicapped.

This new sign features a white stylized symbol of a person seated in a wheelchair (the International Symbol of Access for the Handicapped) and a white border on a blue blackground. It is intended to be installed beneath rest and scenic area advance guide signs.

As an internationally recognized symbol, the sign will provide handicapped travelers information on individual rest areas having restroom facilities designed to accommodate them, rather than requiring the handicapped to exit from the highway to search for appropriate facilities.

Interested organizations and associations may obtain detailed drawings and signing instructions for the new sign by contacting the FHWA's Office of Traffic Operations. Traffic Control System Division (HTO-21), Washington, DC 20590.

THE PRESIDENTIAL PRIVILEGE QUESTION

"All presidential papers directed personally to the President or received directly from him, and those recordings in which the President personally participates, are absolutelyy privileged. The President shall decide when the privilege is to be invoked and the extent of the privilege."

This is the text of an amendment to the Constitution of the United States urged by a Cleveland lawyer who believes that the doctrine of separation of powers has been seriously breached by the Supreme Court.

On July 24, 1974, Chief Justice Warren Burger handed down the court's 8-0 opinion in the case of United States vs. Richard M. Nixon, President of the United States, directing the President to produce certain tape recordings and documents relating to his conversations with aides and advisors.

This was the famous Watergate tapes case and was, in the opinion of attorney Joseph O. Coy, "the most important constitutional question which has confronted the court in the 187 years since the Constitution was written." Certainly, he says, it ranks with the 1803 case of Marbury vs. Madison (which was cited as a precedent in the tapes decision), in which Chief Justice John Marshall struck down an act of Congress as unconstitutional.

In Marbury vs. Madison, the court assumed "the province and the duty to say what the law is." In United States vs. Nixon, while it recognized executive privilege as fundamental to the operation of the government, it held nevertheless that "the general assertion of privilege must yield to the demonstrated specific need for evidence in a pending criminal trial."

By virtue of these two decisions, maintains Coy, "the judicial branch now has established complete supremacy over both the legislative and the executive branches of the government."

The question that will spring to most people's minds is, what would have happened if Coy's amendment had been part of the Constitution at the time of the Watergate scandal? The impeachment proceedings against Richard Nixon would never have gotten off the ground.

Coy doesn't agree. The evidence on the tapes was not all that crucial to the case against Nixon, he says. Even if it was, the fate of one president or of a handful of his subordinates was secondary to the overwhelming importance of the confidentiality of the presidential decision-making process to the effective functioning of the three branches of the government.

He points out that the secrecy of congressional proceedings is protected by the Constitution (Article I, Section 5) and cites the demands of a special committee headed by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, that the Ford administration provide it with information from Nixon White House files about CIA and FBI activities.

This creates, says Coy, the anomalous situation of the executive branch being compelled to divulge information to the legislative branch which is under no constitutional obligation to do the same. Inevitably, he fears, there will be all kinds of leaks of this information, to the detriment of the nation's intelligence apparatus, if not its very security.

Others read United States vs. Nixon differently. Some observers, alarmed at the growth of executive power, warn that for the first time the Supreme Court found "constitutional underpinnings" for presidential confidentiality. Several times the court alluded to the need to protect "military, diplomatic and sensitive national security secrets." Indeed, even as fate was about to close in on him, Richard Nixon expressed his gratification "that the court reaffirmed the validity and importance of the principle of executive privilege—the principle I had sought to maintain."

In any event, with Watergate still so fresh in the public mind, Coy's proposed amendment seems more likely to remain one of those things legal scholars like to argue about than become a cause many people will rally behind.

MALES DOMINATE TECHNICAL FIELDS

In 1974, the large majority of the persons in most science and engineering fields were men, according to a special nationwide survey conducted for the National Science Foundation by the Bureau of the Census.

Of the eight fields covered by the survey, six were about 85 per cent male or more. Engineering and environmental science had the highest proportions of men—99 and 97 per cent respectively. Men also accounted for about 85 per cent or more computer specialists, mathematical specialists, life scientists, and physical scientists. The two fields with fewer men were psychology, about 72 per cent male, and social science, about 79 per cent male.

At least 93 per cent of the persons in each of the eight fields were white, according to the report. The proportion of blacks ranged from less than 1 per cent of the engineers and environmental scientists to nearly 4 per cent of the mathematical specialists.

The Streets Of San Francisco

WASHINTON -- I have a problem and perhaps many other Americans are having it as well. I can't tell the TV news shows any more from the crime dramas that follow shortly afterwards.

I'm not sure whether or not I saw Patty Hearst on Walter Cronkite or on The Streets of San Francisco. Was Sara Jane Moore a character in Cannon or did she really try to shoot the President of the United States?

Reality and unreality blend into one. There doesn't seem to be much difference between the Lynette Fromme we see on Eyewitness News and the sick hippy we watch on Hawaii Five-O.

What do the crazy people do when they're not out in the streets aiming guns at people? So they sit home and watch television? Do they fantasize that S.W.A.T. has their house surrounded or that the FBI's Efram Zimbalist is hunting them in a helicopter?

Do they identify with the people who are trying to kill McCloud or the ones who are trying to rape Angie Dickinson in Police Woman?

When did John Chancellor go off the air and Mod Squad go on? There must have been a commercial break somewhere. Did I see a bank robbery on the six o'clock news or was it on Barbary Coast? Was it the lady in The Rookies who had a .45 in her hand or did I watch her on Harry Reasoner?

Who writes the news shows; who writes the crime dramas? Are they the same people?

Has President Ford seen too many John Wayne movies on TV?

I know I heard that a woman had her .44 taken away from her and in 12 hours she was able to purchase a .38. But what show did I see it on? Was it the Today program or could it have been on Baretta?

Where are all the future Oswalds and the Arthur Bremmers now? Do they have color TV or are they watching in black and white?

Was it Petrocelli, Ironside, Perry Mason or Patty Hearst's lawyer I saw last night saying his client had been brainwashed?

They showed a gun on television that could shoot poison darts and kill someone in 15 seconds. I think Dan Schorr talked about it -- but then again it could have been on Mission Impossible.

Did someone really try to kill Jack Anderson or was it a man on Conrack? I wish I could recall.

There was a kidnaping on TV. I think it was a boy named Bronfman. They caught the kidnapers. Who did? The real FBI or was it Harry O? What shows do kidnapers watch after they're caught? The news programs or the crime dramas?

Are would be killers jealous of Charles Manson? Do they envy Miss Fromme's TV exposure? Do they dream they will be the next ones grinning in the kleig lights that press against their police escorts?

Or do they pretend they're shooting it out with Charles Bronson on the ABC Friday Night Movie.

If I can't tell the real events from the fictional ones, how can they? Maybe there is no such thing as a real event any more. Maybe there's no fiction.Then what is it we're watching and what is it doing to us?

And if it's doing it to us, what is it doing to them – those lonely frustrated people sitting in their dingy rooms fondling the .22s, .38s and .45s and whatever else they bought in the store last week?

The National Rifle Assn. spokesman said on Mike Wallace's show that guns don't kill people -- people kill people. Or did I see that on Kojak?

For the life of me, I can't remember.

Washington Merry-Go-Round
By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Ford's Man For Interior with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Likeable, loquacious Thomas Kleppe, who is waiting in the wings to take over the Interior Department, has demonstrated how to succeed in Washington without really trying.

He looks like the successful businessman he once was, with thinning grey hair and the soul of a bookkeeper. He was a Republican pillar in Bismarck, N.D., active in the American Legion, Lions and Elks.

In 1967, his fellow citizens sent him to Congress where he represented North Dakota's second district without distinction for four years. He was best known, calleagues recall, for his fine paddleball play in the House gym.

Twice, he ran for the Senate. Twice, he was defeated. But as a consolation prize, President Nixon in 1971 appointed him to head the Small Business Administration.

Kleppe has directed the nation's small business affairs with even less luster than he displayed in the House. For instance, he placed cronies of pro-segregationist Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., in charge of minority programs.

This was about the time that Nixon's hatchet man, Fred Malek, was trying to Nixonize the federal bureaucracy. His notorious "Malek Plan" was intended to replace career officials with Nixon louyalists.

The plan, of course, ran afoul of the Civil Service Commission, It, therefore, has been aborted--that is, everywhere except Kleeppe's Small Business Administration.

Malek's aide who helped draft the infamous plan, Dan Kingsley, wound up as Kleppe's associate administrator. Kleppe put him in charge of operations, the most powerful administrative post in the agency.

Another SBA employee who participated in the Malek scheme, Loren Rivard, was scolded by the Civil Service Commission, which recommended that he be fired. Instead, Kleppe promoted him. Last week, Rivard received an award for his "outstanding performance."

The Civil Service Commission also recommended that regional director Gilbert Montano be placed on leave without pay for his alleged role in the Malek manipulations. He not only was kept on the payroll but was honored as the best regional director in the SBA system.

In contrast, the regional director in Philadelplhia, Russ Hamilton, blew the whistle on the use of loans for political purpose. His information fueled a House hearing and an FBI investigation. For this contribution to good government Kleppe fired him.

Yet President Ford has now raised Kleppe to an even higher level of incompetency by naming him the new Interior Secretary. And the Senate Interior Committee doesn't seem disposed to challenge him. Senators are notoriously charitable to former Members of Congress, particularly those who were good paddleball partners.

Footnote: An SBA spokesman told our associate Jack Cloherty that Kleppe didn't carry out the Civil Service Commission's recommendations because of pending litigation. The firing of Hamilton, said the spokesman, was for "administrative reasons."

MONOPOLY IN MOSCOW: The State Department has been accused of serving as an overseas agent for U.S. corporations. But the diplomats have stiffly refused to promote Monopoly, the classic game of capitalism, behind the Iron Curtain.

Parker Brothes, Inc., the Monopoly makers, have asked Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to present the 80 millionth copy of their game to a prominent communist leader.

Any top communist – Russia's Leonid Brezhnev, China's Chou En-Lai or even Cuba's Fidel Castro -- would do just fine, the company has pleaded.

But Kissinger is too busy maintaining the detente with communist leaders, say our State Department sources, to push Monopoly upon them. "No way," will be his answer to Parker Brothers.

Monopoly is already sold in 15 foreign languages. There is a Hebrew edition, for example, but no Arabic one. The Arabs, it seems, have it on their boyucott list.

Introducing the game behind the communist curtain would be a coup for Parker Brothers. For the game has been banned as a "capitalist tool," in Marxist country.

It may be assumed, however, that half-a-dozen bootleg copies are floating around Moscow somewhere. For six Monopoly games mysteriously disappeared from the 1959 Moscow Trade Fair.

Should Kissinger turn down Parker Brothers' request, as we have been told will happen, the company has contingency plans. Their landmark copy will be offered to the Smithsonian Institution.

Should the prestigious Smithsonian reject the historic, if commercial offer, then the 80 millionth game will be presented to the metropolis of Atlantic City, the town whose street names are used in the game.

Footnote: A Parker Brothers spokesman declared that Monopoly is "typically American" and its presentation to a communist nation would be an "ideal gesture."

GRATUITOUS VS. NATURAL VIOLENCE

A psychologist makes a useful distinction between the types of violence that seems to be so necessary to induce people to go to the movies nowadays.

On the one hand is the gratuitous, antisocial violence in films like "Rollerball" and "Magnum Force" in which people are encouraged to get their kicks watching other people being maimed, beaten, tortured and otherwise hurt.

But the violence in such films as "Earthquake," "The Towering Inferno" and "Jaws," although quite explicit, is natural violence, says Dr. Victor B. Kline of the University of Utah.

The total impact of this kind of violence is positive, he says, because it shows ordinary people coming together to overcome some terrible obstacle or danger. It also satisfied "a natural yearning in everyone to experience great emotional adventure without taking any risks."

WORTH A LISTEN

For our own good, it is time to take a look at the size of oil company profits compared to other industries and evaluate the purposes for which they are used. As the chief economist for one of the nation's major oil companies has said in speaking of his own company, "...few people are going to feelsorry for anyone--or any company--that has made a profit of say, $375 million in 1972...and reports 1973 profit running perhaps 30 percent ahead of that rate." Sympathy is not what is needed; understanding is. As this spokesman points out, a lack of understanding, unless it can be remedied, will be "...a major roadblock in the way of progress toward supplying this nation with the petroleum energy it needs."

The First National City Bank of New York has reported that the U.S. oil industry has earned, over the past 10 years, an average of 11.8 percent of its net worth in profits. This compares with computer manufacturers at 17.2 percent, automobiles at 15.6 percent and all manufacturing at 12.1 percent. The year 1972, from the profit standpoint, was the worst in 10 years for the oil industry. Most companies reporting increased profits for 1973 were making a comparison with this previous bad year, and it is a good thing they were able to show an increase. Unless there is enough profit to attract investment capital, "...nothing can be done about relieving the energy shortage--or providing more jobs, eliminating poverty, building adequate housing...." or practically anything else for that matter. It is the same old story--if you are making money, you can borrow money.

This industry spokesman points out that while his company was earning $375 million profit in 1972 it spent $658 million for exploration and development. In 1973, the figure was $722 million, and total capital expenditures rose to $1 billion. As he concludes, anyone raising questions should listen to reasonable answers. Quite plainly, those answers exist, and it is to be hoped that a lot of people are listening.

CAR TRIPS EASIER FOR HANDICAPPED THANKS TO SPECIAL HIGHWAY SIGNS

Handicapped people traveling by car in the U.S. have something to look forward to on the road—a new sign.

The U.S. Department of Transportation's Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) has approved a special symbol sign to indicate rest and scenic areas on Federal-aid highways having restroom facilities for the handicapped.

This new sign features a white stylized symbol of a person seated in a wheelchair (the International Symbol of Access for the Handicapped) and a white border on a blue blackground. It is intended to be installed beneath rest and scenic area advance guide signs.

As an internationally recognized symbol, the sign will provide handicapped travelers information on individual rest areas having restroom facilities designed to accommodate them, rather than requiring the handicapped to exit from the highway to search for appropriate facilities.

Interested organizations and associations may obtain detailed drawings and signing instructions for the new sign by contacting the FHWA's Office of Traffic Operations. Traffic Control System Division (HTO-21), Washington, DC 20590.

THE PRESIDENTIAL PRIVILEGE QUESTION

"All presidential papers directed personally to the President or received directly from him, and those recordings in which the President personally participates, are absolutelyy privileged. The President shall decide when the privilege is to be invoked and the extent of the privilege."

This is the text of an amendment to the Constitution of the United States urged by a Cleveland lawyer who believes that the doctrine of separation of powers has been seriously breached by the Supreme Court.

On July 24, 1974, Chief Justice Warren Burger handed down the court's 8-0 opinion in the case of United States vs. Richard M. Nixon, President of the United States, directing the President to produce certain tape recordings and documents relating to his conversations with aides and advisors.

This was the famous Watergate tapes case and was, in the opinion of attorney Joseph O. Coy, "the most important constitutional question which has confronted the court in the 187 years since the Constitution was written." Certainly, he says, it ranks with the 1803 case of Marbury vs. Madison (which was cited as a precedent in the tapes decision), in which Chief Justice John Marshall struck down an act of Congress as unconstitutional.

In Marbury vs. Madison, the court assumed "the province and the duty to say what the law is." In United States vs. Nixon, while it recognized executive privilege as fundamental to the operation of the government, it held nevertheless that "the general assertion of privilege must yield to the demonstrated specific need for evidence in a pending criminal trial."

By virtue of these two decisions, maintains Coy, "the judicial branch now has established complete supremacy over both the legislative and the executive branches of the government."

The question that will spring to most people's minds is, what would have happened if Coy's amendment had been part of the Constitution at the time of the Watergate scandal? The impeachment proceedings against Richard Nixon would never have gotten off the ground.

Coy doesn't agree. The evidence on the tapes was not all that crucial to the case against Nixon, he says. Even if it was, the fate of one president or of a handful of his subordinates was secondary to the overwhelming importance of the confidentiality of the presidential decision-making process to the effective functioning of the three branches of the government.

He points out that the secrecy of congressional proceedings is protected by the Constitution (Article I, Section 5) and cites the demands of a special committee headed by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, that the Ford administration provide it with information from Nixon White House files about CIA and FBI activities.

This creates, says Coy, the anomalous situation of the executive branch being compelled to divulge information to the legislative branch which is under no constitutional obligation to do the same. Inevitably, he fears, there will be all kinds of leaks of this information, to the detriment of the nation's intelligence apparatus, if not its very security.

Others read United States vs. Nixon differently. Some observers, alarmed at the growth of executive power, warn that for the first time the Supreme Court found "constitutional underpinnings" for presidential confidentiality. Several times the court alluded to the need to protect "military, diplomatic and sensitive national security secrets." Indeed, even as fate was about to close in on him, Richard Nixon expressed his gratification "that the court reaffirmed the validity and importance of the principle of executive privilege—the principle I had sought to maintain."

In any event, with Watergate still so fresh in the public mind, Coy's proposed amendment seems more likely to remain one of those things legal scholars like to argue about than become a cause many people will rally behind.

MALES DOMINATE TECHNICAL FIELDS

In 1974, the large majority of the persons in most science and engineering fields were men, according to a special nationwide survey conducted for the National Science Foundation by the Bureau of the Census.

Of the eight fields covered by the survey, six were about 85 per cent male or more. Engineering and environmental science had the highest proportions of men—99 and 97 per cent respectively. Men also accounted for about 85 per cent or more computer specialists, mathematical specialists, life scientists, and physical scientists. The two fields with fewer men were psychology, about 72 per cent male, and social science, about 79 per cent male.

At least 93 per cent of the persons in each of the eight fields were white, according to the report. The proportion of blacks ranged from less than 1 per cent of the engineers and environmental scientists to nearly 4 per cent of the mathematical specialists.

The Streets Of San Francisco

WASHINTON -- I have a problem and perhaps many other Americans are having it as well. I can't tell the TV news shows any more from the crime dramas that follow shortly afterwards.

I'm not sure whether or not I saw Patty Hearst on Walter Cronkite or on The Streets of San Francisco. Was Sara Jane Moore a character in Cannon or did she really try to shoot the President of the United States?

Reality and unreality blend into one. There doesn't seem to be much difference between the Lynette Fromme we see on Eyewitness News and the sick hippy we watch on Hawaii Five-O.

What do the crazy people do when they're not out in the streets aiming guns at people? So they sit home and watch television? Do they fantasize that S.W.A.T. has their house surrounded or that the FBI's Efram Zimbalist is hunting them in a helicopter?

Do they identify with the people who are trying to kill McCloud or the ones who are trying to rape Angie Dickinson in Police Woman?

When did John Chancellor go off the air and Mod Squad go on? There must have been a commercial break somewhere. Did I see a bank robbery on the six o'clock news or was it on Barbary Coast? Was it the lady in The Rookies who had a .45 in her hand or did I watch her on Harry Reasoner?

Who writes the news shows; who writes the crime dramas? Are they the same people?

Has President Ford seen too many John Wayne movies on TV?

I know I heard that a woman had her .44 taken away from her and in 12 hours she was able to purchase a .38. But what show did I see it on? Was it the Today program or could it have been on Baretta?

Where are all the future Oswalds and the Arthur Bremmers now? Do they have color TV or are they watching in black and white?

Was it Petrocelli, Ironside, Perry Mason or Patty Hearst's lawyer I saw last night saying his client had been brainwashed?

They showed a gun on television that could shoot poison darts and kill someone in 15 seconds. I think Dan Schorr talked about it -- but then again it could have been on Mission Impossible.

Did someone really try to kill Jack Anderson or was it a man on Conrack? I wish I could recall.

There was a kidnaping on TV. I think it was a boy named Bronfman. They caught the kidnapers. Who did? The real FBI or was it Harry O? What shows do kidnapers watch after they're caught? The news programs or the crime dramas?

Are would be killers jealous of Charles Manson? Do they envy Miss Fromme's TV exposure? Do they dream they will be the next ones grinning in the kleig lights that press against their police escorts?

Or do they pretend they're shooting it out with Charles Bronson on the ABC Friday Night Movie.

If I can't tell the real events from the fictional ones, how can they? Maybe there is no such thing as a real event any more. Maybe there's no fiction. Then what is it we're watching and what is it doing to us?

And if it's doing it to us, what is it doing to them – those lonely frustrated people sitting in their dingy rooms fondling the .22s, .38s and .45s and whatever else they bought in the store last week?

The National Rifle Assn. spokesman said on Mike Wallace's show that guns don't kill people -- people kill people. Or did I see that on Kojak?

For the life of me, I can't remember.

Washington Merry-Go-Round
By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Ford's Man For Interior with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Likeable, loquacious Thomas Kleppe, who is waiting in the wings to take over the Interior Department, has demonstrated how to succeed in Washington without really trying.

He looks like the successful businessman he once was, with thinning grey hair and the soul of a bookkeeper. He was a Republican pillar in Bismarck, N.D., active in the American Legion, Lions and Elks.

In 1967, his fellow citizens sent him to Congress where he represented North Dakota's second district without distinction for four years. He was best known, calleagues recall, for his fine paddleball play in the House gym.

Twice, he ran for the Senate. Twice, he was defeated. But as a consolation prize, President Nixon in 1971 appointed him to head the Small Business Administration.

Kleppe has directed the nation's small business affairs with even less luster than he displayed in the House. For instance, he placed cronies of pro-segregationist Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., in charge of minority programs.

This was about the time that Nixon's hatchet man, Fred Malek, was trying to Nixonize the federal bureaucracy. His notorious "Malek Plan" was intended to replace career officials with Nixon louyalists.

The plan, of course, ran afoul of the Civil Service Commission, It, therefore, has been aborted--that is, everywhere except Kleeppe's Small Business Administration.

Malek's aide who helped draft the infamous plan, Dan Kingsley, wound up as Kleppe's associate administrator. Kleppe put him in charge of operations, the most powerful administrative post in the agency.

Another SBA employee who participated in the Malek scheme, Loren Rivard, was scolded by the Civil Service Commission, which recommended that he be fired. Instead, Kleppe promoted him. Last week, Rivard received an award for his "outstanding performance."

The Civil Service Commission also recommended that regional director Gilbert Montano be placed on leave without pay for his alleged role in the Malek manipulations. He not only was kept on the payroll but was honored as the best regional director in the SBA system.

In contrast, the regional director in Philadelphia, Russ Hamilton, blew the whistle on the use of loans for political purpose. His information fueled a House hearing and an FBI investigation. For this contribution to good government Kleppe fired him.

Yet President Ford has now raised Kleppe to an even higher level of incompetency by naming him the new Interior Secretary. And the Senate Interior Committee doesn't seem disposed to challenge him. Senators are notoriously charitable to former Members of Congress, particularly those who were good paddleball partners.

Footnote: An SBA spokesman told our associate Jack Cloherty that Kleppe didn't carry out the Civil Service Commission's recommendations because of pending litigation. The firing of Hamilton, said the spokesman, was for "administrative reasons."

MONOPOLY IN MOSCOW: The State Department has been accused of serving as an overseas agent for U.S. corporations. But the diplomats have stiffly refused to promote Monopoly, the classic game of capitalism, behind the Iron Curtain.

Parker Brothes, Inc., the Monopoly makers, have asked Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to present the 80 millionth copy of their game to a prominent communist leader.

Any top communist -- Russia's Leonid Brezhnev, China's Chou En-Lai or even Cuba's Fidel Castro -- would do just fine, the company has pleaded.

But Kissinger is too busy maintaining the detente with communist leaders, say our State Department sources, to push Monopoly upon them. "No way," will be his answer to Parker Brothers.

Monopoly is already sold in 15 foreign languages. There is a Hebrew edition, for example, but no Arabic one. The Arabs, it seems, have it on their boyucott list.

Introducing the game behind the communist curtain would be a coup for Parker Brothers. For the game has been banned as a "capitalist tool," in Marxist country.

It may be assumed, however, that half-a-dozen bootleg copies are floating around Moscow somewhere. For six Monopoly games mysteriously disappeared from the 1959 Moscow Trade Fair.

Should Kissinger turn down Parker Brothers' request, as we have been told will happen, the company has contingency plans. Their landmark copy will be offered to the Smithsonian Institution.

Should the prestigious Smithsonian reject the historic, if commercial offer, then the 80 millionth game will be presented to the metropolis of Atlantic City, the town whose street names are used in the game.

Footnote: A Parker Brothers spokesman declared that Monopoly is "typically American" and its presentation to a communist nation would be an "ideal gesture."

Budget crunch defeating purpose of merit system

By WILLIAM WEARY
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — The current budget crunch apparently is defeating the purpose of the merit system in some state departments with no foreseeable solutions, state personnel officers say.

Only an extra 1 per cent of each department's budget was appropriated this fiscal year for salary hikes for the state's 23,500 merit employes.

But the General Assembly appropriated a six per cent cost of living increase for all the state's approximately 50,000 employes, regardless of whether they are in the merit system.

The one per cent appropriation covers only about 20 per cent of all state employes, administrators say, far below the number of deserving workers.

"It gives absolutely no compensation for tenured employes," says Ewing Gourley, director of the Division of Family Services. "You can have people who have five to 10 years of experience sitting next to people with only two years' experience and they earn the same money."

With the one per cent appropriation spread so thinly among its 5,400 employes (982 in the division received merit hikes last year with the $400,000 appropriated), the Missouri Division of Family Services has held voluntary, after-hours staff meetings throughout the state to solicit employes' salary policy suggestions.

"The general feeling to date has been an expressed desire to be compensated for performing satisfactorily for a year," says Gourley. "And if they (employes) have, they feel they should get a salary increase in addition to cost of living."

The last division meeting was Sept. 18 in St. Joseph but others were in Kansas City, St. Louis, Springfield and Dexter. No other state department has held this type of staff meeting.

Other departmental administrators, however, attest to salary hike difficulties among employes.

"We have a problem right here now," says Gerald Howell, personnel officer for the Department of Conservation. "People who have been here one or two years are still on the first step of the range which means we're hiring people on the same level.

"There would be a basis for some resentment on the part of older employes," he says.

The state merit system has to be revised but it's difficult to do, says Norman Gillmore, personnel supervisor for the Office of Administration, because of the way salary money is appropriated.

"They appropriate it too close to the budget," Gillmore says. "They don't allow much cushion for increase. They're really tightening up."

A staff member of the House Appropriations Committee, who would not give him name, said there was enough money given for increases.

"They (the departments) still had room to give every person a 1 per cent salary hike but if they give somebody more than one per cent, obviously others aren't going to get anything," he says.

"We found, going through their appropriation bills, that they gave some people as high as a 25 per cent increase last year," he says.

Mel Fooks, a personnel officer for the Division of Family Services, says while exorbitant pay hikes are rare in his division, giving everyone the same merit hike at the same time would "invalidate the definition of merit."

"If you give everyone a six per cent cost of living increase and then give everyone a 1 per cent so-called merit increase, what you come down to is you're giging everyone a seven per cent cost of living increase," he says.

Fooks says productive workers should be singled out for reward to inspire greater motivation.

"We had a situation where janitors who cleaned up the office after the caseworkers went home were making more (than the caseworkers)," he says. "As of July 1 we were finally able to raise the first caseworker scale from $545 to $636."

Fooks says Missouri still pays among the lowest salaries of any state. Missouri caseworkers can go into Illinois or Kansas, he says, and earn $100 per month more on the job.

"I assume that's right," says Senator Norman Merrell, head of the Senate Appropriations Committee. "I had the same thing as a public school teacher — I could have gone across the river to Quincy, Ill., and earned more money."

As for state merit hikes, Merrell says it was "either one per cent or nothing at all. Money isn't that plentiful."

JEFFERSON CITY — The current budget crunch apparently is defeating the purpose of the merit system in some state departments with no foreseeable solutions, state personnel officers say.

Only an extra 1 per cent of each department's budget was appropriated this fiscal year for salary hikes for the state's 23,500 merit employes.

But the General Assembly appropriated a six per cent cost of living increase for all the state's approximately 50,000 employes, regardless of whether they are in the merit system.

The one per cent appropriation covers only about 20 per cent of all state employes, administrators say, far below the number of deserving workers.

"It gives absolutely no compensation for tenured employes," says Ewing Gourley, director of the Division of Family Services. "You can have people who have five to 10 years of experience sitting next to people with only two years' experience and they earn the same money."

With the one per cent appropriation spread so thinly among its 5,400 employes (982 in the division received merit hikes last year with the $400,000 appropriated), the Missouri Division of Family Services has held voluntary, after-hours staff meetings throughout the state to solicit employes' salary policy suggestions.

"The general feeling to date has been an expressed desire to be compensated for performing satisfactorily for a year," says Gourley. "And if they (employes) have, they feel they should get a salary increase in addition to cost of living."

The last division meeting was Sept. 18 in St. Joseph but others were in Kansas City, St. Louis, Springfield and Dexter. No other state department has held this type of staff meeting.

Other departmental administrators, however, attest to salary hike difficulties among employes.

"We have a problem right here now," says Gerald Howell, personnel officer for the Department of Conservation. "People who have been here one or two years are still on the first step of the range which means we're hiring people on the same level.

"There would be a basis for some resentment on the part of older employes," he says.

The state merit system has to be revised but it's difficult to do, says Norman Gillmore, personnel supervisor for the Office of Administration, because of the way salary money is appropriated.

"They appropriate it too close to the budget," Gillmore says. "They don't allow much cushion for increase. They're really tightening up."

A staff member of the House Appropriations Committee, who would not give him name, said there was enough money given for increases.

"They (the departments) still had room to give every person a 1 per cent salary hike but if they give somebody more than one per cent, obviously others aren't going to get anything," he says.

"We found, going through their appropriation bills, that they gave some people as high as a 25 per cent increase last year," he says.

Mel Fooks, a personnel officer for the Division of Family Services, says while exorbitant pay hikes are rare in his division, giving everyone the same merit hike at the same time would "invalidate the definition of merit."

"If you give everyone a six per cent cost of living increase and then give everyone a 1 per cent so-called merit increase, what you come down to is you're giging everyone a seven per cent cost of living increase," he says.

Fooks says productive workers should be singled out for reward to inspire greater motivation.

"We had a situation where janitors who cleaned up the office after the caseworkers went home were making more (than the caseworkers)," he says. "As of July 1 we were finally able to raise the first caseworker scale from $545 to $636."

Fooks says Missouri still pays among the lowest salaries of any state. Missouri caseworkers can go into Illinois or Kansas, he says, and earn $100 per month more on the job.

"I assume that's right," says Senator Norman Merrell, head of the Senate Appropriations Committee. "I had the same thing as a public school teacher — I could have gone across the river to Quincy, Ill., and earned more money."

As for state merit hikes, Merrell says it was "either one per cent or nothing at all. Money isn't that plentiful."

is," the postmaster general says. "It is also built on employe courtesy, our responsiveness to customer needs, the sympathy and understanding we bring to your own expectations of what good postal service is all about."

Pasaka urges customers in Sikeston to bring their inquiries and complaints to the attention of postal managers. And if people feel their problems have not been properly handled, the postmaster said, they should see him personally.

To make it easier for a customer to make a suggestion or complaint about postal service, the new consumer service card will be available from letter carriers and at post offices.

According to Pasaka, the card is two postal cards with carbon paper between them. "One copy goes to me so work can begin on the problem," he said. 'The other goes to Postal Service headquarters in Washington for cataloging and analsysis. The cards will help management spot problem and areas and trends and take corrective action if necessary."

The Consumer Service Program was tested earlier this year in Illinois, Massachusets, Arizona and Rhode Island. Postal customers in the test found the cards easy to complete and most complaints were resolved to the customer's satisfaction.

The card should take no more than two minutes to fill out. The postmaster also said he and his staff are willing to discuss any problems, including lack of courtesy, irregularities in deliveries or collections, collection box convenience and postal office hours.

"We want you to come to us with your problems," concluded Pasaka. "The whole point of this service program is to bring your problems and gripes out into the open where we can attempt to resolve them.

Patty Hearst goes for psychiatric tests

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst was taken by federal marshals from her Redwood City jail cell today and driven to the Stanford University Medical Center for psychiatric testing, a spokesman for the center said.

Miss Hearst also was taken on Monday to the center less than 10 miles south of the San Mateo County Jail for a three-hour examination by Dr. Donald Lunde, said medical center spokesman Spyros Andreopoulos.

Lunde is one of four specialists appointed by U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter to determine whether Miss Hearst is mentally competent to be cross-examined.

A hearing on the psychiatrists' findings that was scheduled for today was postponed when Miss Hearst's attorneys reported the tests had not been completed.

Carter said the prosecution would seek to cross-examine Miss Hearst on an affidavit in which she swore she was tortured and brainwashed by her Symbionese Liberation Army captors.

SLA member Emily Harris said, meanwhile, that Miss Hearst was tricked by her parents into signing the affidavit.

"Who is brainwashing whom?" Mrs. Harris said Monday in a statement taped from her jail cell in Los Angeles.

She described Miss Hearst as a "truly beautiful woman who is being manipulated by her parents" into abandoning her SLA comrades, Mrs. Harris and her SLA soldier-husband William.

"Since our capture, the Hearst empire has put into motion all the power and influence that blood money can buy. The two of us are the sacrifices this time," Mrs. Harris said.

Meanwhile, one of Miss Hearst's attorneys said at a San Francisco news conference Monday that psychiatrists had expressed concern that she might try to commit suicide if she is forced to remain in her San Mateo County jail cell.

Attorney Terence Hallinan said Miss Hearst's mental health is rapidly deteriorating in the jail.

"She's been spaced out. It's harder to get her to talk. She becomes overwhelmed by tears much faster. She cannot even begin to get into these areas that her mind has closed on."

Hallinan said Miss Hearst should be transferred immediately from the jail to a hospital for psychiatric treatment.

In other developments in the Hearst case:

—U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter postponed for one week a hearing scheduled today on Miss Hearst's mental competence to be cross-examined. The judge was told that pychiatrists' tests on the heiress were not ready.

—Steven Soliah, a 27-year-old housepainter, pleaded innocent Monday to charges of harboring Miss Hearst and being an accessory after the fact in a bank robbery. Soliah, who was arrested with Miss Hearst and Wendy Yoshimura, another fugitive, is being held on $75,000 bail.

—A list of items taken from the hideouts used by Miss Hearst and the Harrises showed they had amassed quantities of weapons, disguises and false identification. The Harris apartment also contained materials used to make bombs, including pipes, clocks and about five pounds of gunpowder.

—The Harrises appeared in a Los Angeles court and were refused permission to participate in a secret grand jury hearing probing the SLA. Their attorney, Leonard Weinglass, said

15-year-old charged with burglary, stealing

CHARLESTON — A 15-year-old boy has been charged with burglary and stealing in connection with a break-in Sunday at the mobile home of Bill Alvey, located in Tony's Trailer Park east of town.

Deputy Sheriff Norris Grissom said the juvenile was arrested Sunday afternoon and reportedly admitted ransacking the trailer. A pen knife was the only item reported missing.

The youth, who remained in custody, was turned over to juvenile authorities.

Public hearing today on rail crossing close

BERNIE — A public hearing will be held at 7:30 p.m. today at the City Hall on a proposal to close two railroad crossings in the city and to install gates and signal lights at two other locations.

The Federal Highway Safety Program will pay 90 per cent of the estimated $40,000 cost of installing gates and lights at a crossing on Hunt St., Mayor R. B. Woods said.

In return, the city will close a crossing at either Alice or Crumb St. and pay 10 per cent of the cost of the Hunt St. crossing.

The Missouri Highway Safety Program has said if the city closes the Waller St. crossing, it will pay for gates and lights at either Alice or Crumb St. -- the one which is left open.

Woods said the city would like to see the gates and light installed, but since it would mean the closing of two other crossings, the citizens should have a chance to voice their opinions at a public hearing.

The City Council scheduled the hearing at it's Sept. 8 meeting.

Special session adjourns after okaying transit tax

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—Missouri lawmakers took care of some final technical details and adjourned today, less than a week and a half after it began its special session work on a bill extending the mass transit sales tax.

Final legislative approval came Monday evening in the House, where the measure, still in the form in which it was introduced eight days earlier, withstood three hours of debate and six attempts to change it before gaining overwhelming approval on a 137-21 vote.

The measure now goes to Gov. Christopher S. Bond, who is expected to sign it. House approval ended work on the primary issue facing the legislature in the special session. The Senate concluded its consideration of gubernatorial appointments on Monday also.

Under the proposal, the half-cent transportation sales tax will now be authorized for another two years until Dec. 31, 1977. The amount of tax revenues that must be used for capital improvements will also be reduced from 33 per cent to 15 per cent.

Bond, after polling legislators to insure quick passage of the bill, called the special session beginning Sept. 22 because the same bill failed during the waning hours of the regular session, which adjourned June 15.

Failure resulted when House Speaker Richard Rabbitt of St. Louis declined to back down from his proposal to use 11 per cent of the tax receipts for development of rail transit in the St. Louis area. The Senate had strongly opposed that provision, which was not included in the new law.

Because backers of the bill feared it would be impossible to gain the two-thirds vote needed to put the bill into effect immediately, legislative work had to be finished by Thursday. The bill will now go into effect in 90 days, probably Dec. 29, which is only two days before the present law expires.

The tax has been a primary source of revenue for the Bi-State Transit System in St. Louis and St. Louis County, which receives about $22 million annually, and the Area Transportation Authority in Kansas City, which receives about $10.5 million a year.

Opposition in the House came generally from St. Louis area lawmakers, who wanted more accountability from the bus system.

Patty Hearst goes for psychiatric tests

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst was taken by federal marshals from her Redwood City jail cell today and driven to the Stanford University Medical Center for psychiatric testing, a spokesman for the center said.

Miss Hearst also was taken on Monday to the center less than 10 miles south of the San Mateo County Jail for a three-hour examination by Dr. Donald Lunde, said medical center spokesman Spyros Andreopoulos.

Lunde is one of four specialists appointed by U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter to determine whether Miss Hearst is mentally competent to be cross-examined.

A hearing on the psychiatrists' findings that was scheduled for today was postponed when Miss Hearst's attorneys reported the tests had not been completed.

Carter said the prosecution would seek to cross-examine Miss Hearst on an affidavit in which she swore she was tortured and brainwashed by her Symbionese Liberation Army captors.

SLA member Emily Harris said, meanwhile, that Miss Hearst was tricked by her parents into signing the affidavit.

"Who is brainwashing whom?" Mrs. Harris said Monday in a statement taped from her jail cell in Los Angeles.

She described Miss Hearst as a "truly beautiful woman who is being manipulated by her parents" into abandoning her SLA comrades, Mrs. Harris and her SLA soldier-husband William.

"Since our capture, the Hearst empire has put into motion all the power and influence that blood money can buy. The two of us are the sacrifices this time," Mrs. Harris said.

Meanwhile, one of Miss Hearst's attorneys said at a San Francisco news conference Monday that psychiatrists had expressed concern that she might try to commit suicide if she is forced to remain in her San Mateo County jail cell.

Attorney Terence Hallinan said Miss Hearst's mental health is rapidly deteriorating in the jail.

"She's been spaced out. It's harder to get her to talk. She becomes overwhelmed by tears much faster. She cannot even begin to get into these areas that her mind has closed on."

Hallinan said Miss Hearst should be transferred immediately from the jail to a hospital for psychiatric treatment.

In other developments in the Hearst case:

—U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter postponed for one week a hearing scheduled today on Miss Hearst's mental competence to be cross-examined. The judge was told that pychiatrists' tests on the heiress were not ready.

—Steven Soliah, a 27-year-old housepainter, pleaded innocent Monday to charges of harboring Miss Hearst and being an accessory after the fact in a bank robbery. Soliah, who was arrested with Miss Hearst and Wendy Yoshimura, another fugitive, is being held on $75,000 bail.

—A list of items taken from the hideouts used by Miss Hearst and the Harrises showed they had amassed quantities of weapons, disguises and false identification. The Harris apartment also contained materials used to make bombs, including pipes, clocks and about five pounds of gunpowder.

—The Harrises appeared in a Los Angeles court and were refused permission to participate in a secret grand jury hearing probing the SLA. Their attorney, Leonard Weinglass, said the couple wanted to "confront witnesses." The grand jury began hearings on 19 state charges, including assault with intent to commit murder, against Miss Hearst and the Harrises.

—Criminal attorney F. Lee Bailey, the colorful Bostonian whose clients have included Capt. Ernest Medina, was named head of the defense team for Miss Hearst.

15-year-old charged with burglary, stealing

CHARLESTON — A 15-year-old boy has been charged with burglary and stealing in connection with a break-in Sunday at the mobile home of Bill Alvey, located in Tony's Trailer Park east of town.

Deputy Sheriff Norris Grissom said the juvenile was arrested Sunday afternoon and reportedly admitted ransacking the trailer. A pen knife was the only item reported missing.

The youth, who remained in custody, was turned over to juvenile authorities.

Public hearing today on rail crossing close

BERNIE — A public hearing will be held at 7:30 p.m. today at the City Hall on a proposal to close two railroad crossings in the city and to install gates and signal lights at two other locations.

The Federal Highway Safety Program will pay 90 per cent of the estimated $40,000 cost of installing gates and lights at a crossing on Hunt St., Mayor R. B. Woods said.

In return, the city will close a crossing at either Alice or Crumb St. and pay 10 per cent of the cost of the Hunt St. crossing.

The Missouri Highway Safety Program has said if the city closes the Waller St. crossing, it will pay for gates and lights at either Alice or Crumb St. -- the one which is left open.

Woods said the city would like to see the gates and light installed, but since it would mean the closing of two other crossings, the citizens should have a chance to voice their opinions at a public hearing.

The City Council scheduled the hearing at it's Sept. 8 meeting.

Special session adjourns after okaying transit tax

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—Missouri lawmakers took care of some final technical details and adjourned today, less than a week and a half after it began its special session work on a bill extending the mass transit sales tax.

Final legislative approval came Monday evening in the House, where the measure, still in the form in which it was introduced eight days earlier, withstood three hours of debate and six attempts to change it before gaining overwhelming approval on a 137-21 vote.

The measure now goes to Gov. Christopher S. Bond, who is expected to sign it. House approval ended work on the primary issue facing the legislature in the special session. The Senate concluded its consideration of gubernatorial appointments on Monday also.

Under the proposal, the half-cent transportation sales tax will now be authorized for another two years until Dec. 31, 1977. The amount of tax revenues that must be used for capital improvements will also be reduced from 33 per cent to 15 per cent.

Bond, after polling legislators to insure quick passage of the bill, called the special session beginning Sept. 22 because the same bill failed during the waning hours of the regular session, which adjourned June 15.

Failure resulted when House Speaker Richard Rabbitt of St. Louis declined to back down from his proposal to use 11 per cent of the tax receipts for development of rail transit in the St. Louis area. The Senate had strongly opposed that provision, which was not included in the new law.

Because backers of the bill feared it would be impossible to gain the two-thirds vote needed to put the bill into effect immediately, legislative work had to be finished by Thursday. The bill will now go into effect in 90 days, probably Dec. 29, which is only two days before the present law expires.

The tax has been a primary source of revenue for the Bi-State Transit System in St. Louis and St. Louis County, which receives about $22 million annually, and the Area Transportation Authority in Kansas City, which receives about $10.5 million a year.

Opposition in the House came generally from St. Louis area lawmakers, who wanted more accountability from the bus system.

Lay out spring flower bulbs now

For a dramatic color effect in next spring's garden, plant tulips, hyacinths and daffodils in clumps of a dozen or more and do it now, says Bill Meachem, a gardening consultant for a major wax company.

"They've got to be planted in the fall because nature demands that they have a cold period before they bloom in the spring. But don't put them in straight rows unless you want them looking like a row of tin soldiers."

His advice is to dig out an area two feet in diameter and eight inches deep. Place a dozen bulbs in the bottom, pointed end up. Then refill the hole with the soil that was removed.

Ann Landers

Housewife plugs domestic engineers

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from "Professional Engineer" who is upset because a housewife wrote in and suggested that she and others who stay at home and work be called "Domestic Engineers."

While he was "pounding the books" I spent my time in doctors' offices and labor and delivery rooms. We have three sons. My "fraternity" was housework, colic, diapers, and formulas.

"Professional Engineer" resents people taking his title without earning it. I wonder what he calls washing diapers with a wringer- machine, draping them over radiators to dry, getting up for 1:00 a.m. and 4:00 a.m. feedings, nursing sick kids, and giving up all social life for umpteen years. I figure I've earned any kind of title I want to hang on myself.

"Professional Engineer" worked five years. Big deal. I've worked for nine years-- and quitting time is nowhere in sight. There are millions more like me. Just sign us -- Domestic Engineers, Magna Cum Laude

Dear Magna: If the title makes you feel better, go ahead and use it. You're entitled.

Dear Ann Landers: In regard to the question posed to you by a reader recently, "Can a woman be found quilty of rape?" -- you quoted a prominent Chicago attorney who said, "Yes."

That answer was in reference to the possibility of a woman forcing a man to have sexual relations against his will. I read a few days ago of a landmark case in the Philippines where a woman was sentenced to life imprisonment for rape. It seems she pinned down another woman while her husband raped the woman in an attempt to introduce her to prostition.

So – add this to your "What's The World Coming To List Of Freaky Happenings." -- Philadelphia Reader

Dear Phil: The list is getting longer every day. Who needs to add to it? The case you cite in the Philippines is one where the woman was an accomplice, however, which is different from the question raised by the original writer. But thanks for informing us of the "landmark" case, it's a real weirdo.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a college sophomore with a minor problem. I live a long distance from school and don't own a car. Commuting by bus means a lot of time and money. Frequently, students who live nearby have offered me rides to school - some on a continuing basis. I appreciate the lifts very much.

Am I obliged to contribute anything to these drivers? No student goes one inch out of his way for me. There would just be an empty seat in the car if I weren't in it. Yet I don't want to be considered a freeloader. What is your opinion of this dilemma? – Betwixt and Between

Dear B&B: True, that seat might be empty if you weren't in it, but you ARE in it and it's quite a convenience, isn't it?

I suggest that you offer to fill the gas tank every three or four weeks as a gesture of appreciation. This takes you out of the freeloader's category and places you among those gracious folks who know how to express gratitude.

Bellpulls require care

By ELSA WILLIAMS

Whenever I talk to a group of dedicated needlewomen about the art of embroidery I always make it a point to remind them how important the finishing touches are to the look of their work. I've noticed that even accomplished craftswomen whose work is exquisitely executed, sometimes are careless about how they finish a lovely piece of embroidery.

For instance, embroidered bellpulls have become very popular. A bellpull make a charming decoative accent on a long, narrow wall space — but only if it hangs well. Bellpulls, like every embroidered piece, require careful blocking. A common mistake is leaving the selvage on the finished piece. Because the tightly woven selvage is o one side of the design, if you leave it on, you're practially guaranteing the piece will never hang smoothly.

The way a bellpull is lined also plays a part in how well it looks and how long it will last. Velvet or heavy cotton makes the best lining Silk deteriorates with age and satin tends to mildew in dampness.

Choosing interesting hardware for the top and bottom of a bellpull helps set it off handsomely. Or if you prefer, use a luxurious, fat tassel at the bottom and mount the pull on a picture hook. A major work, such as a tapestry, should have a special bar inserted at the top so it will hang smoothly.

Velcro is a useful and efficient aid in hanging embroidered pieces on the wall. Simply sew a strip of Velcro on the back of your design, top and bottom. Fasten the matching strips to the wall securely: With gentle pressure your tapestry will go smoothly on the wall — and stay there.

Der Elsa,

I enjoy working on designs that are not assembled with yarns because I like to choose my own colors but I find I have trouble deciding what stitches to use. Where can I get help with this?

D.P.B.

Dear D.P.B.,

Choosing your own colors is very pleasurable and so is choosing your own stitches.

If you haven't had much experience, take the time to look at examples in your local needlework shop or go to the library and look at books on embroidery. Select stitches you enjoy doing. If you like working French knots, try massing them in some areas of the design.

If your taste runs to a more open design, work your areas in simple lines. The result will be a completely individual piece of needle art.

Day care legislation is blocked by court

BATON ROUGE, La. AP - New U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare guidelines for federally funded day care centers across the nation were blocked by a federal court in an order made public Monday.

The guidelines, which were to have gone into effect Wednesday, would have tightened the ratio of children to adult attendants.

Attorney Jay Seale of Hammond, representing day care center operators in five states, told U. S. District Court Judge Gordon West at a hearing that the new regulations would put many centers out of business. Seale filed suit on Sept. 18 against David Mathews, secretary of HEW.

West, in an order signed Friday, ordered Mathews to hold up enforcement of the new regulations pending an Oct. 20 hearing.

Seale represents day care operators in Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas, Oklahoma and Tennessee.

HEW has proposed a 4-1 child-adult ratio and a 1-1 ratio for infants.

Center operators in Louisiana say they can't afford to hire more adults because the federal government has not increased funding.

Under an HEW program, day care centers receive funds to care for children of parents involved in job training programs.

He was to have married Johanna Steindl, 32, last week in the Soviet Union, but Soviet officials barred her return to the country.

Passport officials relented only after Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisy appealed personally to Communist party boss Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Shortly afterward, Sokolov said he received a call to report to the agency and was immediately granted a one-month exit visa.

"I want to return with my wife if it is possible," he said.

Sokolov, 31, said Monday that when he went to the Soviet passport office he was told, "You may go to Vienna, but there was no need to make such a great noise."

CAIRO (AP) — President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France will pay an official visit to Egypt Dec. 10-15.

The semiofficial newspaper Al Ahram said that during Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's visit to Paris last January, France agreed to sell Egypt about 50 supersonic Mirage F1 fighter-bombers.

DEER HUNTING HAZARDOUS FOR PEOPLE

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The opening of the deer season is a time of danger to the hunter.

Deer hunting accounts for more casualties than any other kind of hunting, statistics show. The use of bright clothing and a wide, safe zone of fire will help keep the hunters safe, advise safety experts.

4 break-ins reported

BLOOMFIELD — Four break-ins occurred during the last few days, the Stoddard County Sheriff's Department said today.

The front door to Lemons Gravel Company on Highway 25, north of Dexter, was pried open Monday night and a base station valued at about $1,100 was taken.

A chain saw, electric saw and electric drill were taken Sunday night from Bennett Mill Co. in Bloomfield. Entry was gained by prying open a door.

John-Wayne Sales Co. located on Highway 114, northeast of Dexter, was broken into Sunday. Burglars pried open a door and took $5 from a soft drink machine.

About $5 was also taken Sunday night from a soft drink machine at Essex Grain Co. in Essex. The theives entered through a window.

RUBBER HEART BEING TESTED

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The search for rubber that will flex half-a-billion times — the equivalent of an auto tire guaranteed for 500,000 miles — continues in a rubber company's research laboratories.

But the object is not a lifetime tire. It is a lifetime, artificial human heart.

After 10 years of striving, Goodyear scientists report they are now working with a new type of polyolefin rubber which has already surpassed 150 million flexes in standard tests — or nearly four years' worth of heartbeats.

Experimental implantations in animals at the Cleveland Clinic have been successful for as long as 94 days. However, an external power source is still needed to drive the heart.

Reasons: reduction of excessive inventories, tax rebates and tax cuts, more mortgage money available and gradual improvement in new car sales.

People in the news

MOSCOW (AP) — Writer Alexander Sokolov says he has received official permission to go Vienna to marry his Austrian fiancee.

He was to have married Johanna Steindl, 32, last week in the Soviet Union, but Soviet officials barred her return to the country.

Passport officials relented only after Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisy appealed personally to Communist party boss Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Shortly afterward, Sokolov said he received a call to report to the agency and was immediately granted a one-month exit visa.

"I want to return with my wife if it is possible," he said.

Sokolov, 31, said Monday that when he went to the Soviet passport office he was told, "You may go to Vienna, but there was no need to make such a great noise."

CAIRO (AP) — President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France will pay an official visit to Egypt Dec. 10-15.

The semiofficial newspaper Al Ahram said that during Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's visit to Paris last January, France agreed to sell Egypt about 50 supersonic Mirage F1 fighter-bombers.

DEER HUNTING HAZARDOUS FOR PEOPLE

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The opening of the deer season is a time of danger to the hunter.

Deer hunting accounts for more casualties than any other kind of hunting, statistics show. The use of bright clothing and a wide, safe zone of fire will help keep the hunters safe, advise safety experts.

4 break-ins reported

BLOOMFIELD — Four break-ins occurred during the last few days, the Stoddard County Sheriff's Department said today.

The front door to Lemons Gravel Company on Highway 25, north of Dexter, was pried open Monday night and a base station valued at about $1,100 was taken.

A chain saw, electric saw and electric drill were taken Sunday night from Bennett Mill Co. in Bloomfield. Entry was gained by prying open a door.

John-Wayne Sales Co. located on Highway 114, northeast of Dexter, was broken into Sunday. Burglars pried open a door and took $5 from a soft drink machine.

About $5 was also taken Sunday night from a soft drink machine at Essex Grain Co. in Essex. The theives entered through a window.

RUBBER HEART BEING TESTED

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The search for rubber that will flex half-a-billion times — the equivalent of an auto tire guaranteed for 500,000 miles — continues in a rubber company's research laboratories.

But the object is not a lifetime tire. It is a lifetime, artificial human heart.

After 10 years of striving, Goodyear scientists report they are now working with a new type of polyolefin rubber which has already surpassed 150 million flexes in standard tests — or nearly four years' worth of heartbeats.

Experimental implantations in animals at the Cleveland Clinic have been successful for as long as 94 days. However, an external power source is still needed to drive the heart.

Bond's outlook on public visits unaffected

By John Hammarley
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — Resurging public interest in elected officials' vulnerability at the hands of potential assassins hasn't affected Gov. Christopher S. Bond's outlook on public appearances.

Bond said during a Sept. 18 interview he feels making public appearances is still an essential part of an elected official's responsibilities.

"There are certain situations you wouldn't go into," Bond said, "but we do take the necessary precautions and I am aware of the factors involved."

The governor is hesitant to talk about possibile threats and specifics of his security force because of the attention such dialogue brings.

"It's a hard position," said Ralph N. Smith, one of Bond's executive assistants. "By explaining why the governor resists talking about it, you are talking about the very things he wants to stay away from."

The governor's executive security force is composed of seven highway patrol officers, six troopers and Sgt. John Ford. They are specially trained in security procedures at the patrol's academy.

The force maintains an estimated operating budget of approximately $90,000 which includes funding for the troopers who accompany Bond on national and statewide trips.

On national trips, such as the recent Southern and Midwestern governors' conferences, two troopers usually precede Bond to his destination, checking his itinerary, hotel accommodations and speaking locations.

During the interview, Bond spoke of Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme's recent alleged attempt on President Ford's life and the subsequent press coverage of the event.

"Putting Squeaky Fromme on the front page of Time and Newsweek is irresponsible journalism," Bond said. "It's a big news story. I know that.

"But just think for a minute what that does for some other crackpot. You put it in the mind of someone else who would love to have their picture on the front of Time or Newsweek," Bond said.

Smith said Bond and other governors do not face near the danger Ford does.

"Everyone relates to the President," Smith said. "Everyone knows him, knows what he looks like and there are some people who will blame anything on him, even if it's not his fault. I don't thinks governors face that kind of threat."

Smith's contention is supported by a study quoted in a recent Associated Press nationwide survey of governors' security.

Between 1790 and 1968, according to Bernhardt J. Hurwood's "Society and the Assassin" survey, there were eight assassination attempts, one being successful, on 1,330 persons serving as governors.

There have not been any assassination attempts on any Missouri governors in modern history, but the patrol's executive security force is constantly on guard.

"He accompanies the governor not so much for dangerous situations but to protect him from any person who has a gripe he wants to complain to him about," Smith said.

Don Schutte (27) heads for the goal line with teammate Ivory Joe Davis (15) leading the way against the Charleston Bluejays in junior varsity football action at Public School Stadium Monday night. The JV Dogs blanked CHS 22-0.

Busy week for girls

The Sikeston girls' teams keep in action with games in every varsity sport this week. After winning their first volleyball encounter against Charleston, coach Jane Merrick's squad plays again Thursday at Notre Dame High School in Cape. The Tennis team dropped its first match Monday and will try to get back on the winning track at Cape against the tough Central girls' tennis team Tuesday. Sikeston's female golfers go to Cape Guesday also, to get their season started.

A FIRST

"It's about time," said Sikeston High School volleyball coach Jane Merrick after her team record their first win of the season, sweeping a pair of contests at Charleston Monday.

The varsity won twice from the Bluejays, 15-8 and 15-6. The B team also got into the win column, sandwiching 15-12 and 16-14 wins around a 15-6 loss.

The record for both Sikeston teams is now 1-2. The girls will be back in action Thursday night when they will play at Notre Dame.

STREAK ENDED

The Sikeston High School girls' tennis team dropped their first match of the season Monday afternoon, losing to Caruthersville 8-3.

"The girls were beaten before they even went to the courts," said a disappointed Coach Berta Schurenberg, who added that her squad might have been "psyched out" by the reputation of the powerful Caruthersville team.

The only high points for Sikeston were wins by Cindy Davis, Linda Green and Angie Sullivan. All three girls remained undefeated in singles play.

Sikeston narrowly missed another victory in singles play. Gail Strickland of the Bulldogs and Penny Jones of Caruthersville were tied at 7-7 when Gail became ill and had to forfeit.

Caruthersville won both doubles matches, including a 12-10 thriller in the number one match. Beth Spencer and Penny Jones of the Tigers were locked up in a fierce match against Sikeston's Lynn Bizzell and Susan Drumm. The match was tied at 8-8, 9-9 and 10-10 before Caruthersville's duo finally emerged victorious.

Sikeston's record now stands at 3-1. The girls travel to Cape Girardeau tomorrow afternoon to meet the Central High team.

JV defense shines

Riding a furious defensive charge, the Sikeston junior varsity Bulldogs beat Charleston 22-0, for their second straight shutout of the season.

"I just can't say enough about our defense," said an elated coach Tom Horton after the game.

"And, I'd like to single out defensive ends Wayne Sumlin and Gaylon Couch as the key to our (defensive) effort."

It was the second time in four days that Sikeston had beaten Charleston. The varsity Dogs belted the Jay varsity last Friday, 21-8. The win boosted Sikeston's jayvee record to 2-1-1, with their next game at Dexter next Monday.

Not only did the Sikeston defense blank CHS, they also had a big hand in the scoring.

Midway through the first half David Willis picked off a Blue Jay pass and returned it 73 yards for a score. Will Kaiser scored the two-point conversion on a power play and Sikeston led 8-0.

Then, late in the half, defensive back Chris Matthews picked off another throw and returned it 45 yards to set up a unique, but effective, way of making points. The Sikeston tailback, driving for the end-zone, fumbled the ball. But, alertly, tackle Mike Laseter fell on the pigskin for the score and a 14-0 lead.

John Greer gave Sikeston a third intercepted pass late in the half. The clutch pickoff blunted a Blue Jay scoring drive.

Glynn Felton scored the last Sikeston touchdown in the second half. Quarterback Joe Davis ran the two-pointer for the final 22-0 margin.

The win was the sixth in a row for the suddenly rejuvenated Sikeston football program. Included in the streak are two varsity, two junior varsity, one freshman and one eighth grade victories.

Dallas Cowboys Head Coach Tom Landry announced today that for the first time in its 20-year history, the Fellowship of Christian Athletes is making a concerted national effort to increase participation. Scheduled for September 21 through October 31, the Membership Campaign has Olympic medalist runner Madeline Manning Jackson and Chicago White Sox 20-game winner Jim Kaat serving as co-captains.

"There's a place on the FCA team for every young person and adult who wants to participate," said Landry, Chairman of the FCA Board of Trustees. "The list of well-known college and professional athletes and coaches involved in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes reads like a who's who in sports. But the vision and ministry of the Fellowship extends beyond a direct relationship to athletes and coaches. It's for all young people, men and women."

"The Annual membership Campaign is designed to increase the influence and support of the FCA so our message can be shared in a more extensive and meaningful way."

First envisioned in the 1940's and organized in the mid-1950's, the FCA works through conferences, rallies, weekend programs, athletic clinics, banquets, school assemblies, literature, tapes and films college and pro chapel services, and Bible studies. It has organized groups at the adult, junior high and college levels. The Fellowship of Christian Athletes has over 1,700 high school and college groups and 300 adult Chapters.

Ms. Jackson typifies the amateur athlete and women's involvement in the FCA. High school girls' Huddles are a new ingredient in the Fellowship, and girls' conferences are held each summer. Currently working with the Salvation Army Center in Cleveland, Ohio, Ms. Jackson is preparing for the 1976 Olympic Games in Montreal.

"My experience with the FCA has allowed me a platform from which to share my faith," said the slender runner who copped a gold medal in the 800 meters in the 1968 Olympics and a silver medal in the 1972 Games. "I'm anxious to tell the public through this Membership Campaign that there is opportunity for anyone to be a part of this unique sports-faith ministry."

Three Rivers Community College will hold its annual basketball coaches clinic Saturday, Oct. 4, in the high school gymnasium.

The clinic is open to all high school and college basketball coaches and any other persons interested in basketball. Registration will be held from 8 to 9 a.m. The cost for the clinic and lunch will be $5.

The clinic will be directed by Gene Bess, athletic director at Three Rivers, and Roger Pattillo, assistant basketball coach. High school coaches acting as clinicians will be Mitch Haskins of Charleston, Bob Phelps and Leonard Bishop, both of Lilbourn. Basketball teams from Lilbourn and Charleston high schools were state champions last year.

Also acting as clinicians will be David Bone of Arcadia Valley and Herschel Bryant of Black Rock, Ark. The Three Rivers Raiders squad will be used for demonstrations and the clinic will end with a TRCC scrimmage.

Busy week for girls

The Sikeston girls' teams keep in action with games in every varsity sport this week. After winning their first volleyball encounter against Charleston, coach Jane Merrick's squad plays again Thursday at Notre Dame High School in Cape. The Tennis team dropped its first match Monday and will try to get back on the winning track at Cape against the tough Central girls' tennis team Tuesday. Sikeston's female golfers go to Cape Guesday also, to get their season started.

A FIRST

"It's about time," said Sikeston High School volleyball coach Jane Merrick after her team record their first win of the season, sweeping a pair of contests at Charleston Monday.

The varsity won twice from the Bluejays, 15-8 and 15-6. The B team also got into the win column, sandwiching 15-12 and 16-14 wins around a 15-6 loss.

The record for both Sikeston teams is now 1-2. The girls will be back in action Thursday night when they will play at Notre Dame.

STREAK ENDED

The Sikeston High School girls' tennis team dropped their first match of the season Monday afternoon, losing to Caruthersville 8-3.

"The girls were beaten before they even went to the courts," said a disappointed Coach Berta Schurenberg, who added that her squad might have been "psyched out" by the reputation of the powerful Caruthersville team.

The only high points for Sikeston were wins by Cindy Davis, Linda Green and Angie Sullivan. All three girls remained undefeated in singles play.

Sikeston narrowly missed another victory in singles play. Gail Strickland of the Bulldogs and Penny Jones of Caruthersville were tied at 7-7 when Gail became ill and had to forfeit.

Caruthersville won both doubles matches, including a 12-10 thriller in the number one match. Beth Spencer and Penny Jones of the Tigers were locked up in a fierce match against Sikeston's Lynn Bizzell and Susan Drumm. The match was tied at 8-8, 9-9 and 10-10 before Caruthersville's duo finally emerged victorious.

Sikeston's record now stands at 3-1. The girls travel to Cape Girardeau tomorrow afternoon to meet the Central High team.

JV defense shines

Riding a furious defensive charge, the Sikeston junior varsity Bulldogs beat Charleston 22-0, for their second straight shutout of the season.

"I just can't say enough about our defense," said an elated coach Tom Horton after the game.

"And, I'd like to single out defensive ends Wayne Sumlin and Gaylon Couch as the key to our (defensive) effort."

It was the second time in four days that Sikeston had beaten Charleston. The varsity Dogs belted the Jay varsity last Friday, 21-8. The win boosted Sikeston's jayvee record to 2-1-1, with their next game at Dexter next Monday.

Not only did the Sikeston defense blank CHS, they also had a big hand in the scoring.

Midway through the first half David Willis picked off a Blue Jay pass and returned it 73 yards for a score. Will Kaiser scored the two-point conversion on a power play and Sikeston led 8-0.

Then, late in the half, defensive back Chris Matthews picked off another throw and returned it 45 yards to set up a unique, but effective, way of making points. The Sikeston tailback, driving for the end-zone, fumbled the ball. But, alertly, tackle Mike Laseter fell on the pigskin for the score and a 14-0 lead.

John Greer gave Sikeston a third intercepted pass late in the half. The clutch pickoff blunted a Blue Jay scoring drive.

Glynn Felton scored the last Sikeston touchdown in the second half. Quarterback Joe Davis ran the two-pointer for the final 22-0 margin.

The win was the sixth in a row for the suddenly rejuvenated Sikeston football program. Included in the streak are two varsity, two junior varsity, one freshman and one eighth grade victories.

Dallas Cowboys Head Coach Tom Landry announced today that for the first time in its 20-year history, the Fellowship of Christian Athletes is making a concerted national effort to increase participation. Scheduled for September 21 through October 31, the Membership Campaign has Olympic medalist runner Madeline Manning Jackson and Chicago White Sox 20-game winner Jim Kaat serving as co-captains.

"There's a place on the FCA team for every young person and adult who wants to participate," said Landry, Chairman of the FCA Board of Trustees. "The list of well-known college and professional athletes and coaches involved in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes reads like a who's who in sports. But the vision and ministry of the Fellowship extends beyond a direct relationship to athletes and coaches. It's for all young people, men and women."

"The Annual membership Campaign is designed to increase the influence and support of the FCA so our message can be shared in a more extensive and meaningful way."

First envisioned in the 1940's and organized in the mid-1950's, the FCA works through conferences, rallies, weekend programs, athletic clinics, banquets, school assemblies, literature, tapes and films college and pro chapel services, and Bible studies. It has organized groups at the adult, junior high and college levels. The Fellowship of Christian Athletes has over 1,700 high school and college groups and 300 adult Chapters.

Ms. Jackson typifies the amateur athlete and women's involvement in the FCA. High school girls' Huddles are a new ingredient in the Fellowship, and girls' conferences are held each summer. Currently working with the Salvation Army Center in Cleveland, Ohio, Ms. Jackson is preparing for the 1976 Olympic Games in Montreal.

"My experience with the FCA has allowed me a platform from which to share my faith," said the slender runner who copped a gold medal in the 800 meters in the 1968 Olympics and a silver medal in the 1972 Games. "I'm anxious to tell the public through this Membership Campaign that there is opportunity for anyone to be a part of this unique sports-faith ministry."

Three Rivers Community College will hold its annual basketball coaches clinic Saturday, Oct. 4, in the high school gymnasium.

The clinic is open to all high school and college basketball coaches and any other persons interested in basketball. Registration will be held from 8 to 9 a.m. The cost for the clinic and lunch will be $5.

The clinic will be directed by Gene Bess, athletic director at Three Rivers, and Roger Pattillo, assistant basketball coach. High school coaches acting as clinicians will be Mitch Haskins of Charleston, Bob Phelps and Leonard Bishop, both of Lilbourn. Basketball teams from Lilbourn and Charleston high schools were state champions last year.

Also acting as clinicians will be David Bone of Arcadia Valley and Herschel Bryant of Black Rock, Ark. The Three Rivers Raiders squad will be used for demonstrations and the clinic will end with a TRCC scrimmage.

Casey dead at 85

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — The "Old Perfesser" is dead.

Casey Stengel, one of baseball's most colorful and adored figures, succumbed to cancer Monday night at the age of 85— leaving a golden legacy for fans of all ages.

"It's just impossible to sum up what he's been to baseball," said a close friend, California Angel General Manager Harry Dalton, after learning of Stengel's death at Glendale Memoral Hospital.

"He popularized our game with so many people."

Stengeldied at 10:58 p.m., PDT—only a few hours after a close friend had disclosed that the onetime manager had a rapidly spreading malignancy in the lymph glands. Stengel had been admitted to the hospital on Sept. 14 for tests.

The funeral arrangements are incomplete. He is survived by his widow, Edna, whom he married in 1924. They had no children.

Stengel was a breathing legend. Perhaps more than any other figure in the history of the game, he earned the title of baseball's goodwill ambassador.

Casey raced into the Hall of Fame with his baseball exploits but it was only a small part of his exquisite contribution to the game he loved.

There are more diamond-like Stengel stories around than you can shake a bat at and countless witticisms from the language of "Stengelese" which he created with his gloriously fertile imagination.

Stengel never would say in a few words what he could say in a couple of hundred and anytime the grand old man of baseball held court, he always had his audience spellbound— and usually mystified—by his fractured syntax.

Stengel was always great in the clutch, Hall of Fame pitcher Warren Spahn once remembered.

"There's no doubt in my mind who is the most amazin' Met of them all," said the great pitcher when he played for Stengel on the old, uproarious New York Mets. "I can understand why he's become an image. Why he's so beloved. Why he's the greatest ambassador the game has ever known.

"That man is a marvel. He's unbelievable. I don't care how old he is. He's got all those young fellows beat by a mile. I've never seen a more understanding person. Or a more dedicated baseball man. Sure, he's a comedian. Sure he double talks. But he's plenty deep. And nobody knows more about this game. If you listen to him carefully and concentrate on what he's telling you, you can learn plenty. A fellow can get an education just being around him."

The sometimes-clownish Stengel leaped across baseball history, spanning the ancient and modern ages with equal ease. And throughout the colorful career that covered 56 years, the hawk-nosed figure produced an abundance of rich stories.

Once when he was managing Brooklyn he took off his hat on the field—and a swallow flew out of his hair.

Another time, at Boston, when his Braves, for a change, were ahead, it began to rain. Casey pointed toward the darkening sky and demanded the game be called. He was ignored until he pulled a flashlight from a pocket and began signalling his bullpen with it. He was ejected.

Sometimes, to demonstrate his shock at an umpire's decision, Stengel would keel over in a mock faint. Once when he used this ploy, umpire Beans Reardon did the same thing. "When I peeked outta one eye and saw Reardon lying on the ground, too, I knew I was licked," said Casey. "So I got up and walked away."

In 1947 Stengel, then 57, was steered to the subject of umpires in an interview. Soon Casey was pounding his desk and shouting, "Those umpires! They take years off a guy's life, believe me. I don't know what keeps me going, honest I don't. They'll be the death of me yet."

In tribute to his 56 years in baseball, Stengel won a niche with the game's other immortals in the Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y.

He managed the New York Yankees to stunning triumphs and piloted the expansion Mets in the most poignant part of their young history.

Stengel, enshrined in the Hall of Fame when he was 76, managed 37 years, including 25 in the major leagues.

Prior to his years of glory with the Yankees, Stengel had managed the old Brooklyn Dodgers and the old Boston Braves.

Charles Dillon Stengel resigned as the Mets' field boss in 1965 after breaking his hip in a fall. His career managerial mark showed 1,926 victories and 1,867 defeats for a winning percentage of .508. He produced 10 American League pennantwinners and seven World Series titles with the Yankees.

Schoendienst among returnees

.. By KEN RAPPOPORT
.. AP Sports Writer

Earl Weaver, Red Schoendienst and John McNamara are all going back to hear the cheers next year. Danny Ozark is going back, too, but may hear some jeers.

Weaver, Schoendienst and McNamara are among the latest baseball managers to sign for the 1976 season. Ozark has been brought back to fulfill the end of his two-year contract despite voices of anger in Philadelphia.

Weaver, one of the most successful managers in baseball, not unexpectedly signed for another season with the Baltimore Orioles for a healthy contract estimated at $85,000.

"There are other managerial jobs opening up," said Baltimore General Manager Frank Cashen, pointing to weekend firings in Minnesota and Milwaukee. "If Earl really wanted to hold out, maybe he could have done better elsewhere."

But Weaver did not want to go elsewhere, as he pointed out after signing for his ninth season with the Orioles.

"Cashen knows that I'd rather stay in with Baltimore than go any other place," Weaver said.

Since replacing Hank Bauer as Baltimore manager in July, 1968, Weaver has guided the Orioles to a 724-477 record for a won-lost percentage of .60283. That beats out Cincinnati's Sparky Anderson (.60269) for second place behind Joe McCarthy for managers with five or more years' experience since 1900. Among his accomplishments, Weaver boasts a World Series triumph.

The St. Louis Cardinals brought Schoendienst back for his 12th year. Under the unflappable redhead, the Cardinals have won 938 games and lost 835 for a percentage of .529. The Cardinals won two National League pennants and captured a World Series under the former Cardinal star.

McNamara pulled the San Diego Padres out of the cellar for the first time in the expansion club's history. The Padres finished with a 71-91 record for fourth place in the National League West.

Like Weaver and Schoendienst, McNamara signed a one-year contract.

Ozark will return to the Philadelphia Phillies for the second year of his contract, but it might not be a happy association if the boo-birds come out again in Veterans Stadium. They booed Ozark unmercifully most of last season, despite the fact that he had the Phillies in contention for the National League East. They finally finished second to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Sooners retain top spot

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

After telling it like it is, Barry Switzer is telling it like it will be.

"I'm still happy to remain No. 1 after our poor performance against Miami last Friday night," says the Oklahoma football coach. "But what I'm doing right now will take care of the polls."

Switzer, whose team reclaimed the No. 1 position in the AP's weekly poll Monday despite an unimpressive 20-17 victory over the Hurricanes, is going into an intensive huddle with his coaches for the upcoming match with Colorado.

He was honest enough to suggest after last Friday night's game with Miami that the "Boomer Sooners" didn't make enough noise to be the nation's top team. But he also honestly believes that Oklahoma's class will tell by the end of the college football year.

"Most teams are up and down during a season, but if you're a good enough football team the polls will take care of themselves," says the realistic Switzer. "We play tougher teams than a lot of those other guys."

While Switzer was being honest over the weekend, Coach Woody Hayes of Ohio State was being immodest. He said that his Buckeyes deserved to be No. 1 because of its 25-point beating of North Carolina Saturday.

Ohio State held No. 2 this week, same as last.

"He should think they're the Number One team, he's the coach at Ohio State," said Switzer, commenting on Hayes' brashness.

But Switzer wasn't entirely worried about position this week—just Colorado.

"I'm not really concerned about the polls," he said. "I wasn't last year and I'm not this year. Last year we were No. 1 the first week and the second week we weren't. But at the end of the year we were there. Ask me again after it's all over."

Despite that close escape at Miami, Oklahoma's defending national champions received 30 first-place votes and 1,086 of a possible 1,160 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Ohio State, 32-7 conquerers of North Carolins Saturday, collected 26 votes for first place and 1,065 points.

Last week, Oklahoma received 56 first-place ballots to three for Ohio State and a point spread of 1,192 to 1,031.

Southern California remained in third place, collecting one vote for first place and 878 points following a 19-6 triumph over Purdue. Nebraska, the nation's No. 4 team last week, retained that position after a 56-14 rout of Texas Christian. Missouri remained in the No. 5 spot following a 27-21 triumph over Wisconsin.

The remainder of the Top Ten was shaken up. Texas A&M moved from No. 8 to No. 6, passing both Texas and Notre Dame.

Casey dead at 85

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — The "Old Perfesser" is dead.

Casey Stengel, one of baseball's most colorful and adored figures, succumbed to cancer Monday night at the age of 85— leaving a golden legacy for fans of all ages.

"It's just impossible to sum up what he's been to baseball," said a close friend, California Angel General Manager Harry Dalton, after learning of Stengel's death at Glendale Memoral Hospital.

"He popularized our game with so many people."

Stengeldied at 10:58 p.m., PDT—only a few hours after a close friend had disclosed that the onetime manager had a rapidly spreading malignancy in the lymph glands. Stengel had been admitted to the hospital on Sept. 14 for tests.

The funeral arrangements are incomplete. He is survived by his widow, Edna, whom he married in 1924. They had no children.

Stengel was a breathing legend. Perhaps more than any other figure in the history of the game, he earned the title of baseball's goodwill ambassador.

Casey raced into the Hall of Fame with his baseball exploits but it was only a small part of his exquisite contribution to the game he loved.

There are more diamond-like Stengel stories around than you can shake a bat at and countless witticisms from the language of "Stengelese" which he created with his gloriously fertile imagination.

Stengel never would say in a few words what he could say in a couple of hundred and anytime the grand old man of baseball held court, he always had his audience spellbound— and usually mystified—by his fractured syntax.

Stengel was always great in the clutch, Hall of Fame pitcher Warren Spahn once remembered.

"There's no doubt in my mind who is the most amazin' Met of them all," said the great pitcher when he played for Stengel on the old, uproarious New York Mets. "I can understand why he's become an image. Why he's so beloved. Why he's the greatest ambassador the game has ever known.

"That man is a marvel. He's unbelievable. I don't care how old he is. He's got all those young fellows beat by a mile. I've never seen a more understanding person. Or a more dedicated baseball man. Sure, he's a comedian. Sure he double talks. But he's plenty deep. And nobody knows more about this game. If you listen to him carefully and concentrate on what he's telling you, you can learn plenty. A fellow can get an education just being around him."

The sometimes-clownish Stengel leaped across baseball history, spanning the ancient and modern ages with equal ease. And throughout the colorful career that covered 56 years, the hawk-nosed figure produced an abundance of rich stories.

Once when he was managing Brooklyn he took off his hat on the field—and a swallow flew out of his hair.

Another time, at Boston, when his Braves, for a change, were ahead, it began to rain. Casey pointed toward the darkening sky and demanded the game be called. He was ignored until he pulled a flashlight from a pocket and began signalling his bullpen with it. He was ejected.

Sometimes, to demonstrate his shock at an umpire's decision, Stengel would keel over in a mock faint. Once when he used this ploy, umpire Beans Reardon did the same thing. "When I peeked outta one eye and saw Reardon lying on the ground, too, I knew I was licked," said Casey. "So I got up and walked away."

In 1947 Stengel, then 57, was steered to the subject of umpires in an interview. Soon Casey was pounding his desk and shouting, "Those umpires! They take years off a guy's life, believe me. I don't know what keeps me going, honest I don't. They'll be the death of me yet."

In tribute to his 56 years in baseball, Stengel won a niche with the game's other immortals in the Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y.

He managed the New York Yankees to stunning triumphs and piloted the expansion Mets in the most poignant part of their young history.

Stengel, enshrined in the Hall of Fame when he was 76, managed 37 years, including 25 in the major leagues.

Prior to his years of glory with the Yankees, Stengel had managed the old Brooklyn Dodgers and the old Boston Braves.

Charles Dillon Stengel resigned as the Mets' field boss in 1965 after breaking his hip in a fall. His career managerial mark showed 1,926 victories and 1,867 defeats for a winning percentage of .508. He produced 10 American League pennantwinners and seven World Series titles with the Yankees.

Schoendienst among returnees

.. By KEN RAPPOPORT
.. AP Sports Writer

Earl Weaver, Red Schoendienst and John McNamara are all going back to hear the cheers next year. Danny Ozark is going back, too, but may hear some jeers.

Weaver, Schoendienst and McNamara are among the latest baseball managers to sign for the 1976 season. Ozark has been brought back to fulfill the end of his two-year contract despite voices of anger in Philadelphia.

Weaver, one of the most successful managers in baseball, not unexpectedly signed for another season with the Baltimore Orioles for a healthy contract estimated at $85,000.

"There are other managerial jobs opening up," said Baltimore General Manager Frank Cashen, pointing to weekend firings in Minnesota and Milwaukee. "If Earl really wanted to hold out, maybe he could have done better elsewhere."

But Weaver did not want to go elsewhere, as he pointed out after signing for his ninth season with the Orioles.

"Cashen knows that I'd rather stay in with Baltimore than go any other place," Weaver said.

Since replacing Hank Bauer as Baltimore manager in July, 1968, Weaver has guided the Orioles to a 724-477 record for a won-lost percentage of .60283. That beats out Cincinnati's Sparky Anderson (.60269) for second place behind Joe McCarthy for managers with five or more years' experience since 1900. Among his accomplishments, Weaver boasts a World Series triumph.

The St. Louis Cardinals brought Schoendienst back for his 12th year. Under the unflappable redhead, the Cardinals have won 938 games and lost 835 for a percentage of .529. The Cardinals won two National League pennants and captured a World Series under the former Cardinal star.

McNamara pulled the San Diego Padres out of the cellar for the first time in the expansion club's history. The Padres finished with a 71-91 record for fourth place in the National League West.

Like Weaver and Schoendienst, McNamara signed a one-year contract.

Ozark will return to the Philadelphia Phillies for the second year of his contract, but it might not be a happy association if the boo-birds come out again in Veterans Stadium. They booed Ozark unmercifully most of last season, despite the fact that he had the Phillies in contention for the National League East. They finally finished second to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Sooners retain top spot

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

After telling it like it is, Barry Switzer is telling it like it will be.

"I'm still happy to remain No. 1 after our poor performance against Miami last Friday night," says the Oklahoma football coach. "But what I'm doing right now will take care of the polls."

Switzer, whose team reclaimed the No. 1 position in the AP's weekly poll Monday despite an unimpressive 20-17 victory over the Hurricanes, is going into an intensive huddle with his coaches for the upcoming match with Colorado.

He was honest enough to suggest after last Friday night's game with Miami that the "Boomer Sooners" didn't make enough noise to be the nation's top team. But he also honestly believes that Oklahoma's class will tell by the end of the college football year.

"Most teams are up and down during a season, but if you're a good enough football team the polls will take care of themselves," says the realistic Switzer. "We play tougher teams than a lot of those other guys."

While Switzer was being honest over the weekend, Coach Woody Hayes of Ohio State was being immodest. He said that his Buckeyes deserved to be No. 1 because of its 25-point beating of North Carolina Saturday.

Ohio State held No. 2 this week, same as last.

"He should think they're the Number One team, he's the coach at Ohio State," said Switzer, commenting on Hayes' brashness.

But Switzer wasn't entirely worried about position this week—just Colorado.

"I'm not really concerned about the polls," he said. "I wasn't last year and I'm not this year. Last year we were No. 1 the first week and the second week we weren't. But at the end of the year we were there. Ask me again after it's all over."

What's the law?

The case of the unexpected launching

By FACK STRAUSS, LLB

When an electric company began laying pipes below the surface of a city street, the first thing its comfortminded employes did was to erect a comfort station above a sewer. And, while the makeshift shack hardly looked like the Taj Mahal, it was just what Marvin was hoping to find as he came hurrying down the street.

Entering the shed, Marvin closed the door and proceeded to make use of its facilities. Unfortunataely, while doing so, he decided to relax with a cigarette. Instead of just lighting his cigarette, however, he also ignited sewer gases that had accumulated in the enclosure and was launched through the roof of the shed in the ensuing explosion.

Landing helta-skelta in the middle of the street, perplexed Marvin sued the electric company for his injuries.

"He's got not cause to complain," insisted the attorney for the electric company in court. "No one invited him to use our comfort station. It was erected solely for the use of our employes."

"With a comfort station like that one," was Marvin's answer, "It's a wonder that its employes aren't all orbiting the moon. Since it was in the middle of a public street, I had a perfect right to use it. And, if it was dangerous to smoke inside of it, warning signs should have been posted to that effect."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the electric company pay for Marvin's unexpected launching? This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the electric company was not required to anticipate that, without invitation, Marvin would attempt to make use of the comfort station erected for employes, light a match while doing so and suffer the injuries he sustained.

Marvin, concluded the judge in effect, was the victim of his own trespassing.

Frogs for rent

RAYNE, La. (AP) — Business is hopping for the Louisiana Frog Co., which rents out croaking contestants for the annual Frog Festival,

"For about two bucks, we'll provide a contender," says Pete Babineaux, who founded Louisiana Frog more than 40 years ago. "The best are the medium-sized frogs shaped like a race horse — they'll jump four or five feet at a clip."

Rayne, which calls itself "Frog Capitol of the World," is a Southwest Louisiana town of some 10,000 predominantly Cajun residents.

Each year, people come from miles around to watch the frog-jumping contest, the frog-weighing contest, the frog-eating contest and selection of the Frog Queen, the most prized of all area honors.

"We pick the Frog Queen for beauty and poise and for not being afraid of frogs," Babineaux said in an interview Tuesday night.

"But most Cajun girls are quite used to frogs anyway."

He says proudly that last year one of his handcaught, unbruised contestants won the weighing contest at two and three-quarter pounds and that another placed in the jumping contest.

Louisiana Frog began as a venture to sell frog legs to restaurants, then grew into providing the amphibians to laboratories and biology classes around the country.

"We even shipped some to Japan and Formosa," said Babineaux. "The Japanese fed them silkworms and were quite successful. Now they're shipping them back into the United States and cutting into our business a little."

But he says business picked up again when frog-jumping contests became popular in Louisiana, California and other areas.

Hunters, trappers and housewives scour the swamps at night, searching for elusive bullfrogs. Babineaux buys them all, and sells them as quickly as he can.

"But if we do keep them overnight, I just put a light over their pool and they eat their heart out on bugs."

Dr. Lamb

Don't kill taste buds

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a compulsive overeater. I try everything, then I'll go on a binge and eat myself to death. Is there any way to remove or kill my taste buds so I won't get any satisfaction or enjoyment from food? I really think it would be worth it. I need your help desperately.

DEAR READER — The factors that cause you to eat are much more complex than that. It is true that if people eat food they don't like they are more successful in losing weight, but the story doesn't end there.

Many people eat too much as part of their habit pattern — eating when bored, to socialize, when frustrated, because it is that time of day or to reward oneself. For further discussion of why you have hunger, write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Send 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope, and ask for The Health Letter number 2-7, Obesity: The High Cost of Fat.

There is a center in the brain that tells you to eat or not to eat. It responds to your level of blood sugar (glucose). Regardless of whether you feel full or food tastes good or not, if your blood glucose level is low you will be hungry, and as your glucose level rises your hunger diminishes. Cutting out all your taste buds won't change that.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My question is should people on a low-fat diet eat pork? They eat all the beef they want. The fat in beef is much harder than the fat in pork.

If all the fat is trimmed off before cooking I cannot see why one kind is not as safe to eat as the other. To some of us who have hiatal hernia the pork is more easily digested. I would very much like to have your opinion on this matter.

DEAR READER — Even after you cut away all the visible fat there is still fat in meat. It is in the actual muscle fiber themselves, and you can't see it.

It makes a lot of difference which cut of beef or pork you are talking about. You can get an idea by looking at the per cent of fat by weight in various cuts of raw meat after all the visible fat has been removed:

Round Steak	4.7%
Rump	7.5%
T-Bone Steak (choice)	8.1%
Chuck Rib	11.0%
Ham	7.5%
Pork Loin	11.4%
Light cured Boston butt	12.3%

The separable lean ham is about the leanest cut of pork, and many other cuts have a great deal more fat, some of which is difficult to remove before cooking.

Those low percentage figures do not mean low-fat foods. Because of the high water content of meat (70 per cent) 31 per cent of the calories in raw, separable, lean round steak are from fat and 52 per cent from the chuck rib. Over 44 per cent of the calories in the separable lean of ham and 55.5 per cent of the light cured Boston butt are from fat. It makes a lot of difference whether you are talking about per cent of weight or per cent of total calories.

Yes, there is a tiny bit more polyunsaturated fat in pork than there is in beef, but not enough to make a great difference.

What's the law?

The case of the unexpected launching

By FACK STRAUSS, LLB

When an electric company began laying pipes below the surface of a city street, the first thing its comfortminded employes did was to erect a comfort station above a sewer. And, while the makeshift shack hardly looked like the Taj Mahal, it was just what Marvin was hoping to find as he came hurrying down the street.

Entering the shed, Marvin closed the door and proceeded to make use of its facilities. Unfortunataely, while doing so, he decided to relax with a cigarette. Instead of just lighting his cigarette, however, he also ignited sewer gases that had accumulated in the enclosure and was launched through the roof of the shed in the ensuing explosion.

Landing helta-skelta in the middle of the street, perplexed Marvin sued the electric company for his injuries.

"He's got not cause to complain," insisted the attorney for the electric company in court. "No one invited him to use our comfort station. It was erected solely for the use of our employes."

"With a comfort station like that one," was Marvin's answer, "It's a wonder that its employes aren't all orbiting the moon. Since it was in the middle of a public street, I had a perfect right to use it. And, if it was dangerous to smoke inside of it, warning signs should have been posted to that effect."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the electric company pay for Marvin's unexpected launching? This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the electric company was not required to anticipate that, without invitation, Marvin would attempt to make use of the comfort station erected for employes, light a match while doing so and suffer the injuries he sustained.

Marvin, concluded the judge in effect, was the victim of his own trespassing.

Frogs for rent

RAYNE, La. (AP) — Business is hopping for the Louisiana Frog Co., which rents out croaking contestants for the annual Frog Festival,

"For about two bucks, we'll provide a contender," says Pete Babineaux, who founded Louisiana Frog more than 40 years ago. "The best are the medium-sized frogs shaped like a race horse — they'll jump four or five feet at a clip."

Rayne, which calls itself "Frog Capitol of the World," is a Southwest Louisiana town of some 10,000 predominantly Cajun residents.

Each year, people come from miles around to watch the frog-jumping contest, the frog-weighing contest, the frog-eating contest and selection of the Frog Queen, the most prized of all area honors.

"We pick the Frog Queen for beauty and poise and for not being afraid of frogs," Babineaux said in an interview Tuesday night.

"But most Cajun girls are quite used to frogs anyway."

He says proudly that last year one of his handcaught, unbruised contestants won the weighing contest at two and three-quarter pounds and that another placed in the jumping contest.

Louisiana Frog began as a venture to sell frog legs to restaurants, then grew into providing the amphibians to laboratories and biology classes around the country.

"We even shipped some to Japan and Formosa," said Babineaux. "The Japanese fed them silkworms and were quite successful. Now they're shipping them back into the United States and cutting into our business a little."

But he says business picked up again when frog-jumping contests became popular in Louisiana, California and other areas.

Hunters, trappers and housewives scour the swamps at night, searching for elusive bullfrogs. Babineaux buys them all, and sells them as quickly as he can.

"But if we do keep them overnight, I just put a light over their pool and they eat their heart out on bugs."

Dr. Lamb

Don't kill taste buds

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a compulsive overeater. I try everything, then I'll go on a binge and eat myself to death. Is there any way to remove or kill my taste buds so I won't get any satisfaction or enjoyment from food? I really think it would be worth it. I need your help desperately.

DEAR READER — The factors that cause you to eat are much more complex than that. It is true that if people eat food they don't like they are more successful in losing weight, but the story doesn't end there.

Many people eat too much as part of their habit pattern — eating when bored, to socialize, when frustrated, because it is that time of day or to reward oneself. Gallery exhibits young artists works

ST. LOUIS – Rocky Sapp, formerly of Sikeston, is one of five young St. Louis artists whose works have been exhibited this month at the Terry Moore Gallery, 612 N. Second St.

The show is titled, "Young Men About Town".

Marie-Louise Rouff reported in the Sept. 12 edition of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch the following assessment of Sapp's part of the exhibit:

"Sapp's works on paper are hangin in groups of three in a baffling array that challenges the viewer to guess who is the real Rocky Sapp. In one of the series, entitled 'Mantric Tantrums', 'Pyramidal Middle' and 'Infinite Egress', straight edges establish the beginnings – or are they the residues? – of geometric forms floating among delicately colored shapes resembling buildings touching clouds.

"The second group of three is jazzier stuff, which includes visual puns and asides with private connotations.

"Among the last group of three, 'Surface Debris' communicates an odd sense of isolation, with unspecific particles uspended in a dense atmosphere. 'Verticity', one of this group, is in a category of its own: There is a lovely airiness about its two straight-edged objects connectd by sheaves of lines, reminding one of the work of Paul Klee and Saul Steinberg."

Sapp isa graduate of Sikeston High School and the University of Missouri-Columbia. He is currently head of the Wentzville High School art department and together with his staff will open a show at Linden Wood College in St. Charles Oct. 3-23.

Wet weather holds back cotton harvest

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Wet weather has held back Missouri's cotton harvest, while aiding most other maturing crops statewide, the state Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said Monday.

The cotton harvest was reported at a standstill in the Bootheel last week, with only two days suitable for field work. The service said five days were suitable for field work in most other areas of the state.

Cotton bolls were open on 85 per cent of the state's acreage, an increase of 23 per cent from the preceding week, but the harvest remained only four per cent complete.

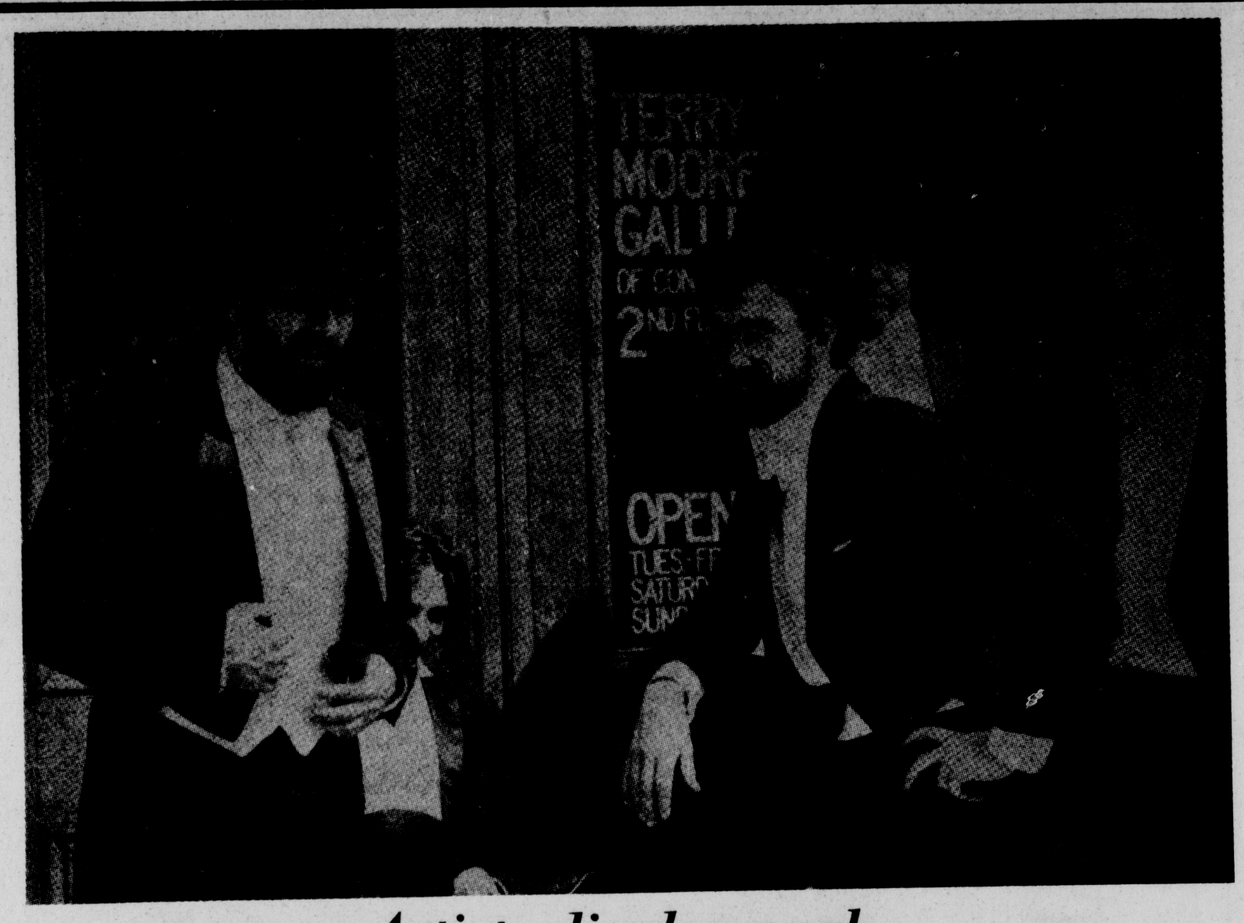
The corn crop was rated at 90 per cent mature and 31 per cent harvested, compared with 53 per cent mature and 14 per cent harvested a year ago. Twenty-six per cent of the state's soybeans are mature, compared with 13 per cent last year, and the harvest is six per cent complete, compared with three per cent a year ago.

The grain sorghum harvest was reported 33 per cent complete, compared with 8 per cent last year and a five-year average of 13 per cent.

The reporting service said the seeding of 1976 winter wheat was 15 per cent complete at the end of last week and plowing was 7 per cent complete.

Soil moisture throughout the state was listed as adequate, with fertilizer and fuel in adequate supply.

On Oct. 2, 1918, the first successful flight of "The Bug," a pilotless aircraft, was made at Dayton, Ohio. In a later time, it was often referred to as a "guided missile".



Artists display work

Rocky Sapp, second from right, formerly of Sikeston, is one of five young artists working in St. Louis whose work is being displayed this month at the Terry Moore Gallery at 612 N. Second St., St. Louis. The large seven-foot by seven-foot painting in the outer lobby of the gallery introduced the work of the five "Young Men About Town," the title of the gallery's current show.

State committee violating constitution

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Legislative Committee on State Fiscal Affairs is violating the Missouri Constitution by transferring appropriated funds from account to account within state agencies, the state Supreme Court was told Monday.

Walter Nowotny, an assistant attorney general, told the seven-member court that if there were an expressed purpose in an appropriations bill on how state funds should be spent, then that money should be spent only for that purpose.

"Amendng the purpose of an appropriation is an unconstiutional delegation of legislative power," Nowotny said. He added that the only way the appropriations bills could be amended would be by the entire General Assembly.

The Fiscal Affairs Committee, which is made up of state House and Senate members, has been giving approval to agency heads to change appropriations from accounts within individual agencies. The approval is given only after the Office of Administration concurs with the change.

An example would be the committee's approval of an agency request to transfer monies from its travel and transportation account to its operations account, although the original legislative appropirations bill financing the agency said otherwise.

Nowotny contended that if an agency runs short of funds and needs additional money to maintain a particular account, an emergency appropriation should be sought from the legislature.

Cullen Coil, representing the committee, said however that transferring the funds did not amount to the unlawful delegation of legislative powers.

He said the committee did not change the entire amount of the appropriation and that the governor's veto power of appropriations bills was not affected.

Coil noted that the governor's office was still included in the decision to transfer the money, since the Office of Administration, part of the state executive branch, must concur in the fund transfers.

Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth filed suit against the committee earlier this year, saying the committee had usurped constitutional powers. After first rejecting the suit, the Supreme Court agreed to take it under consideration June 9.

Bond confirms 20 appointments

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Twenty interim appointees of Gov. Christopher S. Bond were confirmed by the Missouri Senate Monday.

Michael C. Horn, named chairman of the state Board of Mediation, was confirmed after he signed a statement saying he would resign if given a pay raise.

Horn is currently the administrative hearing examiner, and receives $13,000 for that job. As mediation board chairman, Horn will get an additional $7,500 a year.

When he came up before the Senate Gubernatorial Appointments Committee, St. Louis Democrat Lawrence Lee said that Horn's appointment amounted to nothing more than a pay raise, since his duties in either position would not occupy him full time.

Lee said that the governor was trying to circumvent the legislative process by making the appointment and that it was up to the General Assembly to authorize pay increases.

Under committee questioning, Horn admitted the pay raise was part of his appointment, but he added that he did not feel it was a conflict of interest for him to hold both state jobs.

Just before his confirmation by the full Senate Monday, Horn presented committee member Richard Webster, R-Carthage, with a signed letter saying he would resign his job if given a pay raise.

The appointments approved by the Senate were those made by Bond since the legislature adjourned June 15.

They included:

Larry W. Meyer of Aurora as a member of the state Board of Education; Max W. Lilley of Springfield to the Southwest Missouri State Board of Regents; Alfred N. McKemy of Hardin as a member of the Northwest Missouri State Board of Regents; F. William Kasmann of Columbia as a member of the Northeast Missouri State Board of Regents; James Whittico of St. Louis as a member of the state Board of Registration for the Healing Arts; James A. Folk festival to begin Oct. 3

DU QUOIN, Ill.–The fourth annual Southern Illinois Folk Festival, rapidly developing as one of the area's most unique entertainment events, is set for Oct. 3, 4 and 5 at the Du Quoin State Fairgrounds.

Sponsored jointly by Southern Illinois Folk Festival Inc. and Hayes Fair Acres, Inc. of Du Quoin, the three-day affair is based on the talents and skills of area craftsmen.

Demonstrations of pioneer home life, early agricultural methods and basic crafts have established the Festival as an outstanding educational happening. However, it also includes a number of special attractions.

For the first time in its relatively brief four-year history, this year's festival will feature a professional group of entertainers. The Oak Ridge Boys, one of the best known groups in the gospel music industry, will perform twice Saturday night (Oct. 4) on stage in front of the 8,300-seat Du Quoin State Fair grandstand.

The Oaks have appeared internationally, won virtually every Gospel music Association award available and appeared on numerous network television shows. Their appearances at Du Quoin will be one of the few Folk Festival attractions commanding a special admission price.

Although the Saturday night shows are expected to attract the largest individual crowds, other events such as a hog-calling contest, horseshoe pitching contest, senior citizen's kitchen band contest, western square dancing, queen contest, flea market, Punch and Judy show, country store, wood-carvers show, petting zoo, goose plucking and apple butter making have proven to be popular favorites.

Opening day, Oct. 3, has been designated Children's Day with many area schools planning field trips to Du Quoin. The following day will highlight activities for senior citizen groups, with Sunday easablished as Family Day.

Admission is $2 per carload. A brochure listing more detailed information is available by writing P.O. Box 303, Du Quoin, Ill.62832.

Gallery exhibits young artists works

ST. LOUIS -- Rocky Sapp, formerly of Sikeston, is one of five young St. Louis artists whose works have been exhibited this month at the Terry Moore Gallery, 612 N. Second St.

The show is titled, "Young Men About Town".

Marie-Louise Rouff reported in the Sept. 12 edition of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch the following assessment of Sapp's part of the exhibit:

"Sapp's works on paper are hangin in groups of three in a baffling array that challenges the viewer to guess who is the real Rocky Sapp. In one of the series, entitled 'Mantric Tantrums', 'Pyramidal Middle' and 'Infinite Egress', straight edges establish the beginnings – or are they the residues? – of geometric forms floating among delicately colored shapes resembling buildings touching clouds.

"The second group of three is jazzier stuff, which includes visual puns and asides with private connotations.

"Among the last group of three, 'Surface Debris' communicates an odd sense of isolation, with unspecific particles uspended in a dense atmosphere. 'Verticity', one of this group, is in a category of its own: There is a lovely airiness about its two straight-edged objects connectd by sheaves of lines, reminding one of the work of Paul Klee and Saul Steinberg."

Sapp isa graduate of Sikeston High School and the University of Missouri-Columbia. He is currently head of the Wentzville High School art department and together with his staff will open a show at Linden Wood College in St. Charles Oct. 3-23.

Wet weather holds back cotton harvest

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Wet weather has held back Missouri's cotton harvest, while aiding most other maturing crops statewide, the state Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said Monday.

The cotton harvest was reported at a standstill in the Bootheel last week, with only two days suitable for field work. The service said five days were suitable for field work in most other areas of the state.

Cotton bolls were open on 85 per cent of the state's acreage, an increase of 23 per cent from the preceding week, but the harvest remained only four per cent complete.

The corn crop was rated at 90 per cent mature and 31 per cent harvested, compared with 53 per cent mature and 14 per cent harvested a year ago. Twenty-six per cent of the state's soybeans are mature, compared with 13 per cent last year, and the harvest is six per cent complete, compared with three per cent a year ago.

The grain sorghum harvest was reported 33 per cent complete, compared with 8 per cent last year and a five-year average of 13 per cent.

The reporting service said the seeding of 1976 winter wheat was 15 per cent complete at the end of last week and plowing was 7 per cent complete.

Soil moisture throughout the state was listed as adequate, with fertilizer and fuel in adequate supply.

On Oct. 2, 1918, the first successful flight of "The Bug," a pilotless aircraft, was made at Dayton, Ohio. In a later time, it was often referred to as a "guided missile".

Artists display work

Rocky Sapp, second from right, formerly of Sikeston, is one of five young artists working in St. Louis whose work is being displayed this month at the Terry Moore Gallery at 612 N. Second St., St. Louis. The large seven-foot by seven-foot painting in the outer lobby of the gallery introduced the work of the five "Young Men About Town," the title of the gallery's current show.

State committee violating constitution

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Legislative Committee on State Fiscal Affairs is violating the Missouri Constitution by transferring appropriated funds from account to account within state agencies, the state Supreme Court was told Monday.

Walter Nowotny, an assistant attorney general, told the seven-member court that if there were an expressed purpose in an appropriations bill on how state funds should be spent, then that money should be spent only for that purpose.

"Amendng the purpose of an appropriation is an unconstiutional delegation of legislative power," Nowotny said. He added that the only way the appropriations bills could be amended would be by the entire General Assembly.

The Fiscal Affairs Committee, which is made up of state House and Senate members, has been giving approval to agency heads to change appropriations from accounts within individual agencies. The approval is given only after the Office of Administration concurs with the change.

An example would be the committee's approval of an agency request to transfer monies from its travel and transportation account to its operations account, although the original legislative appropirations bill financing the agency said otherwise.

Nowotny contended that if an agency runs short of funds and needs additional money to maintain a particular account, an emergency appropriation should be sought from the legislature.

Cullen Coil, representing the committee, said however that transferring the funds did not amount to the unlawful delegation of legislative powers.

He said the committee did not change the entire amount of the appropriation and that the governor's veto power of appropriations bills was not affected.

Coil noted that the governor's office was still included in the decision to transfer the money, since the Office of Administration, part of the state executive branch, must concur in the fund transfers.

Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth filed suit against the committee earlier this year, saying the committee had usurped constitutional powers. After first rejecting the suit, the Supreme Court agreed to take it under consideration June 9.

Bond confirms 20 appointments

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Twenty interim appointees of Gov. Christopher S. Bond were confirmed by the Missouri Senate Monday.

Michael C. Horn, named chairman of the state Board of Mediation, was confirmed after he signed a statement saying he would resign if given a pay raise.

Horn is currently the administrative hearing examiner, and receives $13,000 for that job. As mediation board chairman, Horn will get an additional $7,500 a year.

When he came up before the Senate Gubernatorial Appointments Committee, St. Louis Democrat Lawrence Lee said that Horn's appointment amounted to nothing more than a pay raise, since his duties in either position would not occupy him full time.

Lee said that the governor was trying to circumvent the legislative process by making the appointment and that it was up to the General Assembly to authorize pay increases.

Under committee questioning, Horn admitted the pay raise was part of his appointment, but he added that he did not feel it was a conflict of interest for him to hold both state jobs.

Just before his confirmation by the full Senate Monday, Horn presented committee member Richard Webster, R-Carthage, with a signed letter saying he would resign his job if given a pay raise.

The appointments approved by the Senate were those made by Bond since the legislature adjourned June 15.

They included:

Larry W. Meyer of Aurora as a member of the state Board of Education; Max W. Lilley of Springfield to the Southwest Missouri State Board of Regents; Alfred N. McKemy of Hardin as a member of the Northwest Missouri State Board of Regents; F. William Kasmann of Columbia as a member of the Northeast Missouri State Board of Regents; James Whittico of St. Louis as a member of the state Board of Registration for the Healing Arts; James A. Franklin of Camden to the Housing Development Commission; J.W. Schwenk of Independence to the Jackson County Sports Complex Authority; William R. Henry of Florissant to the Veterinary Medical Board; Gary E. Maddick of Kansas City to the State Board of Accountancy; Walker J. Long of Poplar Bluff to the state Board of Optometry; Independence physician Arthur R. Robinson to the Board of Podiatry; William E. Enright Jr. of St. Joseph as a member of the state Banking Board; Robert W. Conradi of St. Louis to that city's Board of Election Commissioners; James W. Reed of Columbia as a member of the Missouri Board of Architects; Marie B. Burro of St. Louis as a member of the Human Rights Commission; Robert E. Talbot of Joplin as a member of the Conservation Commission; Audry Rogers of Rolla to the state Board of Nursing ; Narene Mangrum of Wardell as a member of the Human Rights Commission and Don C. Redding of Independence to the State Banking Board.

$34,500 damage suit filed against farmer

BENTON — A $34,500 suit for personal injuries and damages on a change of venue from Mississippi County was filed Friday in the Scott County circuit clerk's office. The suit was filed in behalf of Melbourne Hedge and Matilda Hedge against Ed. Marshall, etal Marshall Lands Inc. a Mississippi County farmer.

The suit states that on June 18, 1973, Hedge, an employe, slipped and fell while laying railroad ties on the banks of a drainage ditch located on the Marshall farm and suffered serious, permanent and disabling injuries.

It further states that as a result of the fall, due to the slippery and muddy condition of the ditch banks, he suffered a ruptured and collapsed vertebral disc and severe nerve damage to his back which has caused extensive medical treatment, hospitalization and surgery to his back.

In the suit Hedge says he has suffered loss of earnings in the amount of $4,500 and will continue to suffer the loss of earnings due to the injuries.

Matilda Hedge is asking damages in the amount of $5,000 as a result of injury to her husband, because she has been deprived of services, companionship and consortium of her husband.

Folk festival to begin Oct. 3

DU QUOIN, Ill.–The fourth annual Southern Illinois Folk Festival, rapidly developing as one of the area's most unique entertainment events, is set for Oct. 3, 4 and 5 at the Du Quoin State Fairgrounds.

Sponsored jointly by Southern Illinois Folk Festival Inc. and Hayes Fair Acres, Inc. of Du Quoin, the three-day affair is based on the talents and skills of area craftsmen.

Demonstrations of pioneer home life, early agricultural methods and basic crafts have established the Festival as an outstanding educational happening. However, it also includes a number of special attractions.

For the first time in its relatively brief four-year history, this year's festival will feature a professional group of entertainers. The Oak Ridge Boys, one of the best known groups in the gospel music industry, will perform twice Saturday night (Oct. 4) on stage in front of the 8,300-seat Du Quoin State Fair grandstand.

The Oaks have appeared internationally, won virtually every Gospel music Association award available and appeared on numerous network television shows. Their appearances at Du Quoin will be one of the few Folk Festival attractions commanding a special admission price.

Although the Saturday night shows are expected to attract the largest individual crowds, other events such as a hog-calling contest, horseshoe pitching contest, senior citizen's kitchen band contest, western square dancing, queen contest, flea market, Punch and Judy show, country store, woodcarvers show, petting zoo, goose plucking and apple butter making have proven to be popular favorites.

Opening day, Oct. 3, has been designated Children's Day with many area schools planning field trips to Du Quoin. The following day will highlight activities for senior citizen groups, with Sunday easablished as Family Day.

Admission is $2 per carload. A brochure listing more detailed information is available by writing P.O. Box 303, Du Quoin, Ill.62832.

Agency proposes bonding of mobile home dealers

JEFFERSON CITY — The Missouri attorney general's office is drafting legislation designed to put teeth into a mobile housing regulation law passed in 1973.

The 1973 law set up an inspection system administered by the Division of Mobile Homes and Recreational Vehicles. All mobile homes rented or sold in the state which were manufactured after Jan. 1, 1974, must meet standards set by the American National Standards Institute. The law also requires tie-downs for all mobile homes.

Harvey Tettlebaum, chief counsel of the attorney general's consumer protection division, says the bill passed in 1973 has a number of flaws.

"One problem we've seen with the bill enacted two years ago is that dealers and manufacturers are going out of business with alarming regularity. These bankruptcies result in the owner holding the burden of repairs."

Tettlebaum, who is drafting the legislation for introduction in the next legislative session, said the proposal would require manufacturers to post $250,000 bond and dealers to put up $100,000 bond.

By bringing the violation of the law under authority of the consumer protection division, Tettlebaum says, the attorneys can freeze a company's assets and create a fund to satisfy consumer complaints.

The proposed law also would:

-- Require manufacturers to put sticker prices on mobile homes and give an accurate estimate of square footage.

-- Provide penalties for failing to tie down a mobile home.

-- Provide a procedure for converting mobile homes to real estate for tax and local zoning purposes.

-- Expand the definition of mobile homes to include modular homes.

-- Define the rights of mobile home tenants and owners by setting standards for mobile home parks.

Bill Gaines, executive director of the Mobile Housing Institute, says the $180 million mobile home industry generally favors the proposed legislation, but his group would like to see an advisory committee formed to advise the regulatory agency on enforcement and standards.

Gaines also sees a potential problem in requiring the mobile home manufacturers and dealers to be bonded.

"While we're not against a bonding requirement," Gaines said, "there might be some difficulty in finding insurance companies to issue bonds for dealers and manufacturers."

Tettlebaum agreed. "The problem with this proposal has been the reluctance of bonding companies to provide insurance. They are loathe to get into an area they don't fully understand."

While there is no provision in the present law for company liability, the mobile home division of the Public Service Commission has been pursuing consumer complaints on an individual basis.

Doug Busby, executive director of the mobile home division, said his agency has handled about 350 complaints from consumers during the 20 months since his office was created. In each of the cases, he says, the division followed up on the complaints to make the companies live up to their warranties and other obligations.

Busby estimates his office has saved individuals almost $300,000 in repair bills.

"On mobile homes built prior to 1974, we have taken action on manufacturers to have them repair that home even though it wasn't under provisions of the bill," Busby said.

Besides handling consumer complaints, the division also has the responsibility of issuing regulations governing the inspection and approval of mobile homes.

The 1973 bill provides that state inspectors examine mobile homes and recreational vehicles in factories and on dealers' lots to determinewhether they meet the national standards Missouri has adopted. If they comply, a seal is placed on the home certifying that it passes inspection.

The prime reason for adoption of legislation regulating mobile homes was the terribly poor quality of the homes being sold in the state and the hazards they brought, Busby says.

"We were about the 36th or 39th state to adopt mobile home regulation," Busby said. "The biggest problem was that all of the manufacturers were sending inferior mobile homes to Missouri because they couldn't pass inspection anywhere else.

"In comparison to homes produced before 1974, the quality of homes has greatly improved because of the passage of the bill. This includes higher standards of insulation, electrical wiring, heating and fire protection."

State Fire Marshall Ralph Morrison agrees that the safety of mobile homes has increased withthe passage of the 1973 law. But he would like to see more rigid standards applied.

Despite passage of the bill, mobile home fires appear to be increasing. In 1974, there were 212 fires resulting in $1.25 million in damage and eight deaths. During the first four months of 1975, 130 mobile homes suffered fire damage, an increase of 26 per cent.

If the new law is enacted, however, all mobile homes in the state would be inspected in the same manner as motor vehicles.

Administration opposes federal bail out of cities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fearful of a spillover from New York's financial crisis, leading big city mayors are seeking congressional approval for more aid or federal guarantees to pay off municipal bonds if the cities default. The Ford administration has opposed any federal bailout of financially strapped New York City or any other city. The mayors' position is to be given today to the congressional Joint Economic Committee chaired by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and then at a meeting with President Ford.

Purse snatching and assault reported in New Madrid

NEW MADRID — A purse snatching and an assault on a woman by three neighbor women Monday were reported by police.

Mrs. Ethel Dixon, 441 Line St., reported to police that someone snatched her purse at 9:30 p.m. as she was walking on Line St. near the driveway to her house.

Mrs. Dixon said a young black boy approached her from behind, grabbed the purse and ran. The purse contained between $6 and $7 and personal papers.

Four women tenants of the public housing unit at 435 Line St. became involved in a dispute about 3 p.m. Monday when one of the tenants, Mrs. Pansy Beaher, complained about children putting trash in her yard.

Mrs. Beaher, who was allegedly assaulted by the three other women, was taken by ambulance to the medical clinic in Sikeston for treatment. The other women have not been arrested or charged.
